BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 13.—The British debt funding bill unexpectedly was given a clear field today in the senate and the administration shipping bill was formally sidetracked, temporarily, and possibly permanently. The shipping bill was voted aside as the result of a parliamentary situation which developed suddenly and democratic opposition to the measure.

Administration leaders hope to obtain a vote on the debt funding measure tomorrow or Thursday and again have the senate proceed with the shipping measure, but opposition to both bills has left the future uncertain. Eventual passage of the British debt measure by a large majority is generally conceded, but the shipping bill's fate is more in doubt. Opponents tonight predicted its defeat. Some administration leaders who have been predicting a vote on the shipping bill admitted privately that, as a result of today's developments, the bill appeared doomed.

The British debt measure occupied most of today's sessions with addresses in it by Chairman McCumber of the finance committee and Senator Smoot of Utah, ranking committee republican and a member of the allied debt commission, which negotiated the British funding agreement. Both declared that it was the best possible to obtain and Senator Smoot said that none as favorable could be expected from any other debtor nation.

Democrats Rap Bill.

The British agreement was subjected to a continual fire of inquiry and criticism from the democratic side, the minority stressing that congress should be given power to pass on all future debt arrangement. Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, introduced an amendment to this effect while Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, offered a substitute bill providing for acceptance of the British.

Following the "cloud burst" Tuesday morning, which brought the total rainfall for the past 24 hours up to 2.83 inches, the weather moderated Tuesday afternoon, true to the prediction of the weather man Monday, and fine, sunshiny weather with high temperature prevailed for a few hours. But the forecast for Wednesday mentioned more rain, although not so much as came Tuesday.

Owing to the heavy rain Tuesday morning, street car traffic was held up for a time, and a number of instances were reported where cars could not proceed because of ponds which formed over the tracks so deep the motors were affected. Sewers over

Richmond, Va., February 13.—Breaking the rigid silence he has maintained since his arrest, Thomas Pollard, young real estate man, who is on trial here for the murder of Mrs. Thelma Ham Richardson, a pretty divorcee, who was killed at the Pollard home on the night of December 11, in an interview with newspaper men today declared his innocence and insisted that the shooting of the woman was an accident.

Pollard declared that he had been "falsely accused," and expressed the hope that "the public will withhold judgment until the facts are presented in their true light in court." Referring to stories printed in the newspapers Pollard launched a bitter criticism of the press and declared that the newspapers "poison the public mind." He denied reports that he had attended a number of public functions since his arrest and declared that he never left his home except when accompanied by his counsel.

Pollard Still in Jail.

The interview took place in Pollard's cell in the city jail, to which he was committed yesterday by Judge David C. Richardson, who ruled that the Newest Proposed Amend-

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 13.—The Norris amendment to the federal constitution eliminating the present session of an old congress after election of a new congress and changing the date of inauguration of the president from March 4 to the third Monday in January was approved today by the senate.

The resolution embodying the amendment was adopted after brief debate and by a vote of 63 to 6. It now goes to the house with approval there before adjournment of congress regarded as problematical.

The senators voting against the resolution were Broussard, democrat, Louisiana; King, democrat, Utah; France, republican, Maryland; Nelson, republican, Minnesota; Overman, democrat, North Carolina, and Reed, democrat, Missouri.

Progressive Measure.

Such an amendment was proposed by the new progressive bloc immediately after it was organized and probably is the first proposed change in the constitution to be approved by the senate after coming out of any committee other than the judiciary committee. It was reported from the agriculture committee of which Senator Norris is chairman as a substitute for a senate resolution introduced soon after the beginning of the present session by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, providing that members of congress defeated in an election should not vote on other than routine business during the session.

The Caraway resolution had been referred to the agriculture committee at the request of its author, who said that if it went to the judiciary committee "it would go into the sleep that knows no awakening."

Text of Resolution.

The resolution as adopted is as follows:

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein), that the following amendment to the constitution be, and hereby is, proposed to the states, to become valid as a part of the constitution when ratified by the legislatures of the several states, as provided by the constitution.

The Saint Had Nothing

A Valentine.

I.
What shall I send you for a Valentine?
Perhaps there's nothing that would please me better
Than to enclose this loving heart of mine
Within the snowy pages of my letter.
That would be very innocent and artless,
But then, I knew that you would deem me heartless.

II.
And so I am! . . . When first I saw your face
And heard your voice, with its melodious tone—
When first I held you in a fond embrace
My heart forsook me and became your own.
And yours, indeed, it shall forever be
Unless you choose to give it back to me!

Custom of Sending Love
Tokens on February 14
Sprang Up Long After Martyr's Death.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

See the city editor, sez he. "It's Valentine's day tomorrow, write us a good feature about it, Ralph."

So, herewith and notwithstanding, let's go.

Wednesday, February 14, in the year of Our Lord, 1923, St. Valentine's Day.

That begins the story.

Reference to our old and ready help in time of trouble, Noah Webster, divulges the following:

"February 14 observed as a festival in honor of St. Valentine, a Christian martyr of the third century. It was a very old notion that on this day birds begin to mate. The custom of sending love tokens at this time has no connection with the saint, whose name was probably introduced through some mistake."

Picture the Saint.

That provides room for thought.

Can't you picture to yourself, some stern and austere saint of the early centuries of Christendom, going stoically to his martyrdom? Can't you picture said saint arriving at his sorely earned reward in the eternal hereafter? Can't you picture the fast passing centuries rolling around, until at last comes this fateful twentieth?

Then there is a conversation 'ip heaven. One saint begins to ask the others what they are famous for. One after another tells of some great human ideal, forever linked with his name. Others tell of heroism which has provided the inspiration for countless lives of unflinching courage and all-enduring piety.

Then it comes the turn for Saint Valentine to tell the tale of honor at tached to his name. He blushes and hangs his head in shame.

"Men link my name," says he, "with a foolish habit of sending sickly sentiment to their lady friends and idiotic, so-called humor, to their fellows. It is a day of ribaldry and apish mirth."

The Saint Looks Down.

But then his eyes brighten. His thought skips over all the foolishness of man, and he points a finger quivering with hope and pride to the figure of an honest youth, far down in some rustic, half-forgotten country lane. The youth is secretly slipping a white envelope into an old hollow tree stump. Soon he disappears. There comes, with many a delicious blush, with many a fender palpitation of an innocent little heart, a maid.

She draws up to the hollow stump half afraid, shy and proud. She draws out the envelope and, as she reads its contents, warm red blushes suffuse the tender damask of her cheek.

With a quick glance around, she presses the think of paper lace and ties to her rose red lips, laughs a shy little laugh of self-conscious joy, and runs, as though afraid of her own boldness, back the way she came.

And, from behind a nearby tree, a happy boy jumps out, throws his old woolen cap high in air and, lips puckered in a joyful tune, goes dancing down the woodland path.

The old saint, high up in heaven, turns proudly to his mates and says, "My day is pretty good, after all."

VALENTINES FLOODING

Chicago, February 13.—Who says we are not sentimental any more? Valentines are swamping the mails, according to Arthur C. Lueder. He is the postmaster here.

The valentine rush is believed to be greater this year than in several years past, and, according to Lueder, heart-shaped boxes of flowers and candy are pouring through the Chicago postoffice by the thousand.

Deserter Twenty-Two Times,

Harmon Finally Detected

BY GEORGE L. DAVIS.

"There's a race of men that won't fit in. A race that can't stay still. So they break the hearts of kith and kin, And roam the world at will."

After defying the vigilance of the United States bureau of identification for eleven years, Charles Harmon, the world's champion "repeater," who enlisted and deserted from the army, navy and marine corps twenty-two times, was apprehended Monday by Sergeant A. A. Trigg, local army recruiting sergeant, when he applied for his twenty-third enlistment.

Harmon is the only man on record, local army officers assert, who for over a decade succeeded in using Uncle Sam as a railroad ticket to travel from place to place at the dictation of a roving disposition and a pair of feet solely by "wanderlust."

"I'm a rolling stone," he confessed with a grin Tuesday. "Wherever I went, I always wanted to be some place else."

Harmon is being held at the Fort McPherson barracks charged with twenty-two fraudulent enlistments and twenty-two desertions.

"The army, marine and navy always furnish a ready means of transportation from the cold of the north to the sunny south, and when it got too hot in the south, I just deserted and re-enlisted for the northern or western climate."

Asked why he dared to attempt re-enlistment at the local office Monday, he replied: "Well, I knew they would get me sooner or later, and I thought I would take another chance. If they got me, all right; if not, all right. But they got me."

Woman Causes Downfall.

In this case—as in most cases of a similar nature—the name of a woman brought about Harmon's down-

Idaho Falls, Idaho, February 13.—The two bodies found in Lake La Foudre, near Bastrop, La., were placed there by medical students from a New Orleans college and were not those of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, as claimed, according to Dr. Lew Burger, of New York, who was spokesman at an open meeting of the local chapter of the Ku Klux Klan here last night.

"Daniel and Richard are alive and well at New Orleans, where they are under daily observation by Klan members," Dr. Burger said. He was introduced as "official spokesman of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

The people of Morehead parish still are looking for the supposed instrument of torture. Dr. Burger said, and in conclusion he declared that the hands referred to at the recent hearing at Bastrop were described as wearing black regalia, whereas the official Ku Klux Klan apparel was entirely white.

"Will Be Produced." "Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard will be produced alive at the proper time," said Dr. Lew Burger.

The speaker dealt at length with the Morehead investigation of the Klan and touched on activities in Texas and Oklahoma.

Burger said his purpose was "to inform and explain to the American people the object and purpose of the K. K. K. as an organization."

The meeting was in charge of about 40 members of the Klan dressed in full regalia.

Mr. Walmesley took an active part in the investigation of the kidnapping of Daniel and Richard in Morehead parish last August and was personally in charge of the two bodies found in Lake La Foudre in December which were identified as those of the missing men.

Columbus, Ga., February 13.—A street car crashed into passenger train number 4, of the Central of Georgia railroad, just as that train was pulling out from Tenth street, at 9:40 o'clock tonight. Three persons are known to have been injured, being taken to a hospital.

The passenger train had been standing at Tenth street waiting for a freight train to pass on the opposite track. When the freight train passed the passenger train started and at the same time the street car started across, the crew not observing the train.

The street car was badly damaged and the locomotive put out of service.

The Injured: Motorman J. C. Dawson.

Harry Bize, Central of Georgia engineer, who was en route to his home on the street car.

James Wheat, a negro passenger on the street car.

Several other persons were said to have been suffering from bruises.

The passenger train was in charge of Conductor H. O. Herrington and Engineer T. W. Hipes, of Macon, Ga.

Washington, February 13.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The attitude of the administration with respect to recognition of the soviet government of Russia has undergone no changes since the declaration of Secretary of State Hughes shortly after he took office. It was learned officially today.

At that time Mr. Hughes, replying to overtures made by the soviet government, declared the matter of recognition by the United States was out of the question until means were found in Russia for arresting what was described as "progressive impoverishment."

While it is admitted that the bolshevik regime has endured much longer—now approaching its sixth year—than prophets expected, reports which reach this government from practically all sources are said to indicate a disappointing situation in Russia as regards governmental stability on the one hand and encouragement and opportunity for financial investment on the other.

Although there have been numerous protestations on the part of the soviet Dick Jester, notorious for daring escapes from Fulton and DeKalb county chainings, is again in jail.

He was arrested after a desperate struggle Tuesday night with Plainclothesmen H. L. Turner and B. E. Moore, on Piedmont avenue near Elgin street, after an unsuccessful attempt to steal the detectives' automobile.

The officers were forced to beat him nearly unconscious before they could hand-off him. At police station he was surly and defiant and begged for a chance to thrash Plainclothesman Turner.

A confederate, whom police said Tuesday night they believed to be W. W. Colson, escaped. Jester had put up cash bail for Colson's release.

Dusseldorf, Germany, February 13. Franco-Belgian invaders confiscated railroads, seized two more cities, imposed fines and took other measures of reprisal as angry Germans in the Ruhr and Rhineland staged hostile demonstrations on the first day of the economic blockade of unoccupied Germany.

The carriers of the Ruhr—the property of the German republic—passed from the hands of their owners Tuesday, when General DeGoutte, the French commander-in-chief, issued a proclamation which stated that henceforth the railways were under the orders of the French and Belgian military authorities.

This drastic step, which had been anticipated for some time, came as the result of fruitless efforts of the French to induce the German railroaders to quit their strike which has crippled transportation in Europe's richest industrial area. The crews struck on direct orders from the Berlin government.

The French will employ German railroaders if they promise to perform their duties faithfully and to refrain from committing acts of sabotage.

Will Guard Mails.

The situation was given an increased warlike aspect when it was further announced by General DeGoutte that German hostages will be carried beside the engineer in all trains as a guarantee against sabotage. Just what penalty is to be meted out to the hostages in case of forbidden conduct to the inhabitants was not disclosed.

Simultaneously with the seizure of the carriers French and Belgian soldiers marched close to the Dutch border and seized the German cities of Wessel and Emmerich. The customs houses, municipal buildings and railroad stations of the cities were occupied. Many Germans who refused to salute the invaders were arrested.

The occupation of the two strategic points completes that ring of iron which has been thrown about the Ruhr and Rhineland to enforce the decree of prohibiting exportation of coal, iron and manufactured products to the unoccupied portion of Germany.

Big Fine Assessed.

French reinforcements were dispatched to Gelsenkirchen near Essen, where two French officers and two German police were shot in Monday's riot. The chief of police and seven of his officers were arrested and municipal authorities were ordered to

What Do Your Children Think of You?

Have they ever told you?
Or do you squelch them with the same old tune: "I'm right because I'm your mother—or your father"?

Don't you suppose they are sometimes as much disappointed in you as you are in them?

They may not say anything, because you are parents. But what do they think?

If you care—and every mother and father does care—you will read three things in the big new February LADIES' HOME JOURNAL:

What They Think, by Rachel Crothers, whose "Nice People," a play of the younger generation, has been a two-season success.

Long Ropes and Strong Stakes, by Harry Emerson Fosdick, preacher of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Sophistication, by Barton W. Currie, editor of The Journal.

They will give you understanding of your sons and your daughters—and of your own self—that you need today. Read them!

Who's In Society ?

Who's in Society—and how did they get in? The names of Vanderbilt, Astor, Morgan, Belmont, Gould, Mills, Davidson, Reid, Lamont, Vanderlip, Villard are familiar to every reader of the newspaper society column.

Time was when birth and family ruled Society. Now wealth and a press agent will get you in.

Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, herself a leader of the original 400, has written for The Journal a startling revelation of the methods of the social climbers for the past sixty years.

She tells secrets of Society that have never before been put in print—stories of people whose names are everywhere household words.

Don't miss the first article in this astonishing series, Our Social Ladder.

The Wife He Should Have

A man and two girls, a meddling aunt, a marriage, a blasted career—that is Mateel Howe Farnham's new Kansas serial, which begins in this issue.

A horse race, a heart for the stake, a pair of society crooks, a tumble—and that is Clifton Lisle's thrilling story, High Ongar.

A banker, a Sunday-school head, a series of petty thefts, a confession of the most unusual sort—Conscience Money, by Jennette Lee.

The Vanishing American, by Zane Grey—probably the greatest story this master writer of the West has ever told.

The House of Helen, by Corra Harris.

One Hundred Years of Joan, by Philip Curtiss.

Silver Moon, by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott.

Innes Fraud Charge Aired Next Month In Federal Court

Victor Innes will probably go to trial on a charge of using the mails to defraud at the March term of United States court, it was indicated by court authorities Tuesday.

Innes was charged with the murder of the two Nelms girls, who disappeared in Texas several years ago. He was acquitted of this charge, but was convicted in Georgia for larceny after trust, and has only recently finished serving his sentence.

He was arrested immediately upon completing his term on the chain gang and is being held on the federal charge in default of a heavy bond.

BOARDER REINSTATED Agrees to Pay Up When Landlady Gets Warrant.

Fred Edelkamp was a very desirable boarder at the house of Mrs. A. B. Cheney, at 319 Courtland street, except for his apparent thoughtlessness when it came to paying board, the landlady told Judge T. O. Hathcock in municipal court Tuesday morning after taking out a warrant charging the boarder with cheating and swindling.

When Edelkamp expressed his willingness to make restitution for the amount he was said to be in arrears, approximately $20, Mrs. Cheney declined to prosecute him and the warrant was dismissed.

Mooseheart Benefit Dance for Tonight In Forsyth Building

For the benefit of more than 1,200 orphans who are inmates of the Moose orphanage in Mooseheart, Ill., a Valentine costume dance will be given by Atlanta Moose lodge tonight at the Knights of Pythias hall in the Forsyth building. Persons without cards will be admitted if properly vouched for.

All arrangements have been completed, a fine orchestra engaged and F. E. Radensleben, well-known attorney, chairman of the ticket committee, will give any additional information desired.

Several hundred invitations have been sent out by Atlanta lodge, No. 15, and it is expected that this will be one of the most successful dances of the season. John Gilmore is dictator of the lodge.

BEAVERS TO TAKE FIGHT TO COURTS

Spence Says Several Avenues of Legal Recourse Are Open to Chief in Resisting Ouster.

Probability of an extended fight in Fulton superior court to determine the legality of charges of inefficiency and incompetency against Police Chief James L. Beavers, as contained in the official situation from the police committee of council served upon him last Saturday, seemed certain Tuesday when George C. Spence, attorney for the chief, announced that he is considering several possible methods of procedure by which Chief Beavers might retain his position pending final action in the police shake-up.

The chief's attorney declined Tuesday to divulge the course he would take at Friday's meeting at which Chief Beavers has been notified to appear before the committee and show cause why the charges should not be final and why he should not be ousted from the department.

Chief Is Optimistic.

Both the chief and Attorney Spence were optimistic in belief that "everything would turn out in their favor," the main concern being to prevent the committee from suspending Chief Beavers while the case is being considered in superior court. It is not likely, according to attorneys, that the case will be delayed in superior court any great length of time, as marked the case against Chief Beavers four years ago, which consumed more than two years in the courts before a final verdict was returned which exonerated Beavers.

Several attorneys and leading politicians of the city have advanced opinions relative to the charges, which show a difference of opinion as to the validity of the proceedings. Some contend that the committee can remove Chief Beavers if it can sustain any one of the charges enumerated in its citation and judgement, which contain eight separate counts.

Others contend that the chief cannot be arraigned on charges taken from the grand jury presentations in the famous "bunions" investigation claiming that these charges have already been decided and that Chief Beavers cannot be tried a second time on such charges.

Spence Hints Plans.

Attorney Spence intimated there were several possible methods by which the committee's charges could be contested. An injunction can be obtained which would restrain the committee from recording the judgment, or a writ of certiorari with a request for a restraining order to prevent the chief from being replaced pending final judgment of the case were two of the methods being considered.

Chief Beavers was engaged Tuesday in preparing a statement which, it is understood, he will read to the committee at its session Friday. A full answer to the eight counts as contained in the statement and judgement of the committee will be made by the chief, it was stated.

The chief was also compiling a list of representative citizens of Atlanta whom he will request to appear at the hearing and offer testimony in rebuttal of the charges, provided the committee will extend the hearing and allow the chief an opportunity to call upon them.

MUST PAY DEBTS Fifteen Policemen Suspended Pending Settlements.

Temporary suspension of 15 members of the Atlanta police department because of failure to pay personal debts and obligations was announced Tuesday by Police Chief Beavers, in compliance with instructions from the police committee. Suspended members will not be reinstated until they have satisfactorily adjusted their obligations, it was stated.

Before the order of suspensions was signed by the chief, the bad debt committee of the council, composed of members of the police committee, reviewed the list and issued instructions that they be dropped from the department until their debts were settled.

CHAMBER HIGHWAY COMMITTEE NAMED

Interest of the chamber of commerce in building good roads through-out the state resulted Tuesday in appointment by President Newell of a committee to officially represent the body at the good roads meeting to be held at the Kimball house Friday at 1 o'clock.

The following were designated to attend as representatives of the chamber: R. K. Rambo, R. C. Alston, P. H. Norcross, E. M. Mann, Underwood, Fonville McWhorter, H. G. Hastings, W. R. C. Smith, Lon Credelle, E. A. Bancker, Jr., and B. S. Barker.

Fail to Identify Dublin Mystery Body as Atlantian

Description of Meredith Arwood Found to Differ From Body Found.

Possibility that the unidentified body found in the woods near Dublin, Ga., last week, was that of Meredith Arwood, 18-year-old son of O. B. Arwood, of Atlanta, mysteriously missing for more than eight months, was disproved Tuesday when it was learned in advices from Dublin that the description of the missing boy and the body found does not correspond.

Young Arwood left home about a year ago, and when last heard from was in Macon. At that time he stated that he was planning to join the navy, but subsequent investigation of navy records failed to disclose his name on the roster.

The boy is described by his father, an upholsterer living at 24 Dalton street, as being about six feet tall, dark brown hair and eyes, of slender build, a small scar under his chin, a scar in the edge of his hair over the right eye, a large scar on the left leg midway between the knee and the ankle, and a smaller scar on the right leg.

When this description first was telephoned to Dublin by The Constitution, it was stated by county officers that it tallied in many respects with the body found, which was buried Monday. Positive identification at that time could not be had because the chief or the county police, who personally handled the case, was out of the city.

Advices Tuesday, after the return of that officer, indicated that the description differed from Young Arwood, in that the body found was under six feet tall, that he had sandy hair and that no prominent scars were on the body. Laurens county officials now express the belief that the body is that of a young man from near Wrightsville, whose name is given as Ameson, also missing.

Relatives of young Arwood have not given up the search. They are planning to have a further investigation made of the navy records, and if this fails to reveal him in the government service, they probably will take the necessary steps to have the body in Dublin disinterred.

OCCUPATION TAX POWER RESTRICTED

Supreme Court Rules That Foreign Corporations Doing Consignment Business Are Exempt.

The supreme court of Georgia Tuesday handed down a decision in the case of city of Atlanta et al. vs. the York Manufacturing company, which denies the right of municipalities and the state of Georgia to impose license or occupation taxes on foreign corporations doing business in Georgia on a consignment or agency basis.

The York Manufacturing company, of York, Pa., resisted the demand of the city of Atlanta for a municipal license for doing business in Atlanta, and through its attorneys, Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman, and Mark Bolding, filed a bill in Fulton superior court, seeking an injunction against enforcement of a license tax.

Upon the trial of the injunction case before Judge Pendleton, the city of Atlanta was represented by its city attorney, James L. Mayson.

Upon the hearing, Judge Pendleton granted the injunction on the ground that the York Manufacturing company was engaged in interstate commerce, and, therefore, was entitled to the protection of the interstate commerce clause of the federal constitution, which protection extended to any sales of its goods in Georgia on a consignment or agency basis through local merchants.

The city of Atlanta appealed from Judge Pendleton's decision, and the decision rendered by the supreme court sustained the decision of the court below, all justices concurring in the decision.

Under this ruling the supreme court held that any license tax sought to be imposed in Georgia on the business of foreign corporations engaged in selling their goods in Georgia on a consignment or agency basis, through local institutions, was void, such business being exempt from license taxation in the shape of municipal taxes or otherwise, and such taxation being unconstitutional.

The effect of the decision will extend to occupation taxes which have heretofore been exacted by the state from foreign corporations doing business in Georgia on a consignment or agency basis, from which source the state has heretofore derived a large revenue in occupation taxes.

ALLEGED RACING GAMBLERS CAUGHT AFTER HOT CHASE

J. R. Broadnax, 41, of 13 1-2 Houston street, and Jack Letenas, 30, of 50 West Baker street, were arrested by Lieutenant W. A. Channing and Howard Lee Turner, of the plainclothes squad, Monday afternoon after an exciting race of several blocks through the downtown section. They were charged with "bookmaking" and placed under bonds of $200 each.

The chase began in front of 6 North Broad street, where the officers say they observed the two copying racing results from a newspaper. They began running at the approach of the officers, but were overtaken.

The arresting officers indicated that the men would be prosecuted under the recent municipal ordinance which forbids the booking of racing results and statistics for the purpose of placing wagers or bets.

30 POSTMEN "SHOT" Typhoid Serum Injections Keep Many in Bed.

Thirty city carriers of the Atlanta postoffice failed to report for duty Tuesday morning following receipt of their second "shot" of typhoid serum administered Sunday. All substitutes available were pressed into service Tuesday morning. Government employees are being given free typhoid serum by Major George S. Pitcher, surgeon in charge of Base Hospital No. 48. The first injection for the postal employees was given about ten days ago.

Steam, Steel and Dynamite Must Start It

Getting the necessary materials out of the earth is one of the spectacular operations in cement making.

Steam shovels cut into a field or a hill. Two tons at a bite—they strip away the soil to a depth sometimes of forty feet or more.

The stripping brings you down to the ledges of limestone and shale from which cement must be made.

Large steel drills follow. Powerfully, patiently, they chip their way through ledges that are often 30 feet thick. In a year, one of these drills will bore through miles of solid rock.

Dynamite comes next—75 pounds to a hole—more than 15 million pounds of it for the entire industry last year. From two to a hundred holes are loaded, tamped and wired.

Workmen seek cover.

A button is pressed. The earth trembles. Hundreds—thousands—of tons of rock leap from the face of the quarry and fall in a heap below.

Many of the stones come down too large; quarry-men must "pop shoot" them into smaller pieces.

When they are reduced to not more than a ton or so each, steam shovels load them into dump cars, and they are hauled off to the first of the giant crushers in the cement mill.

At a medium-sized plant—one turning out a million barrels a year—hundreds of thousands of dollars are invested in quarry and quarry equipment—air compressors, drills, steam shovels, railways, locomotives and cars.

Where other materials besides stone are used—like marl or clay from a lake or pit—different but just as interesting methods are employed.

Getting out the raw materials is the first step in the long careful process of cement making.

NEGRO SURVIVES WOUND IN HEART; STITCHES TAKEN

Glenn Freeman, colored, whose heart was pierced by a knife thrust during an encounter with a negro, was well on the road to recovery Tuesday after the wound had been stitched by Dr. W. R. Smith, resident surgeon at Grady hospital, in one of the most remarkable operations performed in the history of the hospital.

organ was removed from its normal position after a triangular incision had been made over the patient's fifth rib. Part of the rib was removed to permit the surgeon to complete the operation.

Several times during the operation Dr. Smith replaced the heart in its normal position to allow the vital organ to "recover" from the shock. Five stitches were taken, all told. The operation was performed in one hour and 20 minutes.

Tuesday Dr. Smith pronounced the patient as resting easily and well out of danger.

HAYNES PLANNING DOCTORS' BUILDING

Leases Realty on West Peachtree and North Avenue With $250,000 Structure in View.

Plans for a modern office building for physicians at least seven stories high, to cost about $250,000, were announced Tuesday following lease of property at the southwest corner of West Peachtree street and North Avenue to Eugene V. Haynes, through M. C. Kiser Real Estate company, for a period of thirty years.

The thirty-year rental totals $168,000, it was announced Tuesday on the return of Mr. Haynes from Florida. Renting of offices in the building will be handled through the M. C. Kiser company, with personal attention of T. J. Wood and R. W. Barnwell, it was announced.

The property is owned by Mrs. Nettie Sheffield Collier. Terms of the lease call for possession April 1, with rental of $400 per month for a period of ten years, then $500 per month for the remainder of the term of the lease. A ten-story house now occupies the property, which fronts 55 feet on West Peachtree street and is 130 feet deep.

According to present plans, stores will occupy the ground floor of the building and the offices will be especially fitted for use by doctors.

In announcing the closing of the deal Tuesday, Mr. Haynes stated that he was considering a proposition to erect another seven-story building on property at Spring and Linden streets. Other developments in this section in which Mr. Haynes figures are two parcels on Spring street which he subdivided and sold.

TECH MAN FACES TRIAL FOR HITTING CHILD WITH AUTO

Frank Merrick, of 1039 Peachtree street, Georgia Tech faculty member, who ran over and seriously injured Bobbie Young, 6-year-old son of Herbert Young, Salvation Army adjutant, will face Recorder George E. Johnson on a charge of reckless driving. In spite of the fact that eye witnesses declared the accident unavoidable, Mr. Young insisted on having a case made against the Tech professor.

The child was crossing the street at Ellis and Ivy streets with his grandmother, Mrs. Emily McKee, and Mrs. Jacklin Porter, of 92 East Ellis street, when he was struck by Mr. Merrick's machine. His right leg was broken and he received other injuries about the body.

GRAVEL MEN SAY FREIGHT INCREASE WILL STOP ROADS

A number of paving projects will have to be abandoned if proposed increase on freight rates on sand and gravel is made, according to F. H. Oppel, who was in Atlanta Tuesday attending a conference of southern railroad officials and sand and gravel men from Georgia, Florida and South Carolina. The increase, he stated, would mean an advance from 30 to 100 per cent in the rates.

JAIL FOR SPEEDER

Johnson Refuses Mercy Plea of Jitney Man.

Speed law violator's plea for mercy will fall on deaf ears if they are haled into Recorder George Johnson's court, according to his ultimatum Tuesday at the trial of R. D. Hunt, a jitney driver.

"I didn't show mercy to my own grandson when he was arrested charged with a traffic violation," Judge Johnson said, after Hunt had asked that his fine of $25 be reduced. "Too many people have been injured lately for me to be moved by hard luck stories."

Hunt was remanded to the custody of the city jailer and ordered confined in jail until his fine was paid.

sign on Lieutenant Morrison's mind, and when notice was sent from Augusta that one Carl Harvey had enlisted in the army at that station and had been ordered to Atlanta to be transferred to a point in Texas, the recruiting forces were on the alert.

Harvey, who was Harmon sporting one of his numerous aliases, did not reach Atlanta at the expected time, having deserted again to look over the city of Mason. Notice of his desertion was then sent to the fort from Atlanta.

In the meanwhile Sergeant Triggs at the Atlanta recruiting office had been also notified and given a description of the tattoo designs. Tiring of city life in Mason, Harmon came to Atlanta and decided to "re-enlist" for service in the Panama Canal zone, where his roving feet had never carried him.

Charles Harmon, 35, of Baltimore, alleged to have deserted twenty-two times from the United States army, navy and marine corps.

When Sergeant Triggs saw the tattoo designs he knew he had his man, but he had no authority to arrest him. Accordingly, he took Harmon to Fort McPherson, where he was arrested and placed under guard at the fort barracks.

"Sergeant Triggs is to be commended the diplomacy used in handling the man," said Lieutenant Morrison, "as he was absolutely without means or authority to detain him."

"If I had been apprehended I think I would have stayed in the army in the canal zone," the prisoner said wistfully. "The nearest relative you can notify is my aunt, Mrs. Ida Roberts, in Baltimore," he added.

Referring to the girl whose name is tattooed on his arm, Harmon said she was a girl he knew in Clarksburg, W. Va. "I used to think a lot of her," he said, "but I got the roving disposition, and left Clarksburg. She has since married, and when last heard from was very happy."

Until his enlistment in Augusta Harmon was with a carnival which is now wintering in Greenville, S. C.

BETTER HIGHWAYS LUNCHEON FRIDAY

Highway Officials and Boosters to Hear Hardwick, Holder and Neel. Public Is Invited.

The Georgia state highway commission and executive force will be entertained at a luncheon, February 16, at the Kimball house at 1 o'clock. It was announced Tuesday by C. J. Haden, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Governor Thomas W. Hardwick will be the principal speaker. It was announced, John W. Holder, highway commissioner and former speaker of the house, and W. R. Neel, chief engineer for the state highway commission, will also address the luncheon.

"It is the purpose of the luncheon," Mr. Haden told The Constitution Tuesday, "to bring together a large number of Georgia citizens who are interested in the work done by the department. We expect to have some of the most prominent individuals in the state in attendance and believe that the meeting will elucidate many problems of the highway department that are misunderstood to a great extent."

The commission has much to contend with," Mr. Haden declared, "and it is with the purpose of enlightening people interested in the betterment of Georgia's roads that we have arranged this luncheon."

"We want to make the people understand," Mr. Haden continued, "that we are not working against them, but are working for them. We believe if we can bring together a large number of Georgia citizens at this meeting so that the aims and work of the state highway commission can be explained to them, we can greatly simplify the problem of maintaining Georgia's 5,000 miles of highways and to attain greater things in the betterment of the conditions of the state as a whole."

The seating capacity of the dining hall is limited and it is asked that checks for reservations at $2 per plate be sent as soon as possible. The arrangement committee is especially anxious that it be understood that anyone interested in better highways is cordially invited to attend the dinner.

RAILWAYS DELAY HEARING ON RATE OF WEEVIL POISON

On motion of the railroads, the hearing on freight rates for calcium arsenate, scheduled to have been held Tuesday, was postponed until February 27.

The commission had issued a rule requiring the railroads to show why the arsenate rates should not be reduced to a scale 50 per cent greater than the rates of fertilizer, instead of three times that rate as now. Calcium arsenate is largely used in the fight on the boll weevil and its price is a matter of large concern to the cotton growers of the state.

REWARD OFFERED FOR DYNAMITERS IN CAVE SPRING

Rome, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—The little city of Cave Spring, 14 miles from Rome, in Floyd county, was thrown into a panic late Monday night by an explosion of dynamite which occurred in the negro quarter near the home of Rene Stocks, an old colored man, brew out the windows of the house and otherwise badly damaged it. No one was injured. The negro was ill and in bed.

A short time ago he had received a note warning him to leave Cave Spring. A number of other negroes had received similar notes but had been told by the mayor and other leading white citizens to pay no attention to them as it was thought that probably boys were trying to frighten them, in fun.

The city of Cave Spring has offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension of the persons who caused the explosion Monday night and Governor Hardwick has been urged to supplement the amount for the state.

SELECTS WRONG MULE

John Wyatt Mistakes Steed in Darkness.

"Judge, your honor, I ain't gonna back to the farm and I ain't gonna leave no more—never," John Wyatt told Recorder George H. Johnson Monday afternoon when he hailed before the official of the law upon the charge of stealing a mule from the city stables Saturday night.

Wyatt testified that he had come to purchase necessary articles to tide him over the week as he was usual custom. Upon his arrival in the city he had parked his "day-burner" in the public stables and proceeded to transact his business.

Later he took himself to the stables to saddle and examine a wagon and begin his pilgrimage back to the farm, but due to darkness, he mistook the "tag" of another for his own cherished "day-burner."

He drove off with the wrong mule, but before he had gone far he was overtaken by the law and landed in the city jail.

The owner of the mule expressed willingness for his dismissal, and Judge Johnson let him go free.

Parking Prohibited.

Police Tuesday issued orders prohibiting parking of automobiles on Marietta street, between Forsyth and Spring; Mitchell street near Madison avenue, and Broad and Forsyth streets, in the vicinity of Alabama.

The order was issued on the request of Acting Mayor Foster Hunter. The newest non-parking order, it is said, will relieve congestion in the vicinity of the proposed State street viaduct, now under construction.

TALLEY REPORTS $1,516 MORE RAISED IN Y. M. C. A. DRIVE

Active work among business men of the city for the state Young Men's Christian association's $18,000 budget of 1923, to extend the organization's work among young men and boys of rural Georgia, resulted in raising $1,516 on the first day of the campaign.

This report was made by S. B. Talley, of the Rogers chain stores, Atlanta city-wide chairman, at the luncheon of workers in the Hotel Ansley at noon Tuesday. Tuesday afternoon was featured by intensive work of the men assisting in the Atlanta campaign, and another report will be made at 12:30 o'clock today at a luncheon in the Pine room of the Ansley.

The Tuesday luncheon of the 20 workers was featured by reports on the progress of the campaign, and a survey of the field into which the state Y. M. C. A. will extend its work this year upon the completion of the campaign. The list of the boys who will be influenced by the Christian character training of the organization was emphasized by Tom Johnson, state Y. M. C. A. secretary.

JUDGE C. D. THIGPEN DIES IN SANDERSVILLE

Had Been Washington County Ordinary Eighteen Years.

Sandersville, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Judge C. D. Thigpen, director of Washington county, died here this morning after an illness of several weeks. Judge Thigpen submitted to an operation on his throat two weeks ago, but medical skill could not prevent the fatal issue from exacting its toll. He was 63 years old and had been ordinary of this county for 18 years. He held the position as agent of the Central of Georgia railroad at Sun Hill, Ga., for the past 20 years.

Judge Thigpen was a prominent Mason and his funeral will be in charge of the Sandersville and Pennington Masonic lodges, and will be held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Telegrams of condolence have been sent to the family by Governor Hardwick, who was a close personal friend of Judge Thigpen, and also from other prominent men throughout the state.

Judge Thigpen was prominent in the affairs of the Southern Baptist convention and had been a regular attendant for many years.

The courthouse, schools and places of business in Sandersville will be closed Wednesday during the funeral hour in marked respect to one of Washington county's most loved men.

He was president of the city board of education and also was president in the affairs of the County Officers' association of Georgia.

He is survived by his widow and seven daughters, Mrs. Essie Collins, Mrs. W. M. Goodwin and Mrs. S. G. Lang, Jr., of Sandersville; Mrs. J. E. Freeman, of Marietta; Mrs. C. Baldwin, of Atlanta, and Misses Nell and Louise Thigpen, of Sandersville.

BERNSTEIN CHARGES WIFE'S WILL FORGED

Say Signature Does Not Correspond With One at Athens Bank.

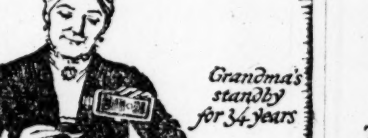

Athens, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Trial of the Bernstein will case will enter its third day in the court of Ordinary R. C. Orr here tomorrow.

All the evidence and testimony in the case was turned into the court today at noon and argument by attorneys for the caveator, Selig Bernstein, and of the propounders of the will began at 3 o'clock and lasted until tonight. The closing argument will be made tomorrow by T. F. Green, one of the attorneys for the propounders. Attorneys of Mr. Bernstein claimed today that the will in question was not genuine, a fabrication of the major beneficiaries of the document. The will which the caveator is attempting to upset, is said to have been signed by his late wife while she was seriously ill in a Boston hospital. Attorneys for the caveator deny she ever made a will. Witnesses familiar with the signature of Mrs. Bernstein were introduced by attorneys for the caveator to substantiate their claims that the signature on the will in question is not genuine.

Mr. Bernstein's declaration was similar to that made by J. H. Hubert and Mrs. Laurens Gray, both of whom were employees of the Peoples' bank, of which Mr. Bernstein was president and declared the signature on checks given by Mrs. Bernstein was so unlike that on the will they believed the latter was not hers.

Both Mr. Hubert and Mrs. Gray said they had seen so many of Mrs. Bernstein's checks that they were convinced the signature on the will were not hers even though attorneys for the defense maintained it was made while the late Mrs. Bernstein was ill.

consumed all of Monday, adjourning at 6 o'clock until this morning. Three witnesses were introduced Monday afternoon.

The estate in question is worth approximately $100,000, part of which goes to Mrs. M. Rosenberg, of Atlanta, mother of A. Hyman, paper box manufacturer of that city. Mr. Bernstein, husband of the testator, was left a life estate of $20,000, one of his daughters $5,000 and the remainder to sisters, brothers and other relatives of Mrs. Bernstein.

Dr. M. Wineberg was the first witness Monday morning. He was with Mrs. Bernstein throughout her illness, in Baltimore and Boston where she is said to have signed the will in question.

GETS TWO-YEAR TERM FOR POISONING FAMILY

Commerce, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Ed Long, a negro of this county, living near Jefferson, was convicted today of an attempt to poison his wife and children. It was alleged that in June of this year he mixed calcium of arsenate in the flour used by the family, with the result that they were all poisoned, but without serious results. He was convicted and sent to the gang for two years.

Remove the Film If you wish pearly teeth

You get prettier teeth now wherever you look. They glisten, they look clean. The reason lies in a new cleaning method. Millions now fight film.

You want the attraction, the added protection that it brings. Then won't you make this simple test to prove that you can get them?

You must fight film

It is film that makes teeth cloudy. It is film that ruins teeth. If you want prettier teeth and safer teeth you must fight that film.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Under old methods, few escaped those troubles. And beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

A new situation

Now there's a new situation. Dental science has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatsant which contains harsh grit.

See what it does

In fairness to yourself, see and feel these Pepsodent effects. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. And you will want those benefits continued to the people in your home. Cut out the coupon now.

VILLA KAYOES FRANK MASON

Boston, Mass., February 13.—Panch Villa, defeating his title of American flyweight champion, tonight knocked out Frankie Mason, of Indiana, former holder of the championship, in the fifth round. Except for a short storm, which Mason forced on him in the fourth round, Villa was master throughout. Mason had by far the worst of the first three rounds and the fourth was going against him when he sent home several rights to the body to gain honors in that one round.

The fifth round was only a few seconds when Villa jolted Mason with a right to the head and caught him short with a stiff left. Mason was down sprawling, but came up after a count of nine. The champion was on him with both hands and swinging hard sent Mason against the ropes and to the floor under a rain of blows. The boxer tried to rise, but was unequal to it and fell back. Villa stepped back to his place, smoothed down his oiled hair, then went forward to shake hands with his defeated opponent, himself a former champion in this smallest of actually contested boxing classes.

It was announced that Villa weighed 111 pounds and Mason 110.

Old Referee Dead.

IF YOUR STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT BEGIN TAKING SALTS

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate; then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from your pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will help prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effective, non-drug which usually helps make pimples disappear.—(adv.)

Bad Weather Not Halting Baseball Work at Tech

Coach Alexander Rules That Recent Company Football Title Game Must Be Played Again.

BY JOHN STATION.

Rain and bad weather have become so habitual that they fail to impress Coach Alexander at Tech these days. He said that he had reached the point in the baseball training period where he had to make every day count. For that reason, regardless of weather, it would be necessary to practice every day. So he has his men out now doing his track in the mud, hitting, running the bases and doing most everything that could be done were the field as dry as the Sahara.

It's not much over a month now until Penn State will be the guests of Tech for a two-game series. No team has been picked, no team work developed and no pitchers worked in. A month is not so long when there are so many things to be done. No wonder he has to make every day count.

One good thing, no pitching staff will have to be developed. Coach Alexander has on hand enough pitchers to win any ordinary championship. Collins, Thompson, Allison and Hines are his regulars from last season. In addition, he has two very good pitchers left from the freshman team of last year, and Enloe, a reserve of last year.

That outlay leaves little to be desired in the form of wingmen. The side divides up two and two. Collins and Thompson being right-handers; Allison and Hines pitching from the port side.

Collings Looks Good.

Collings was last year picked on the composite all-southern. He received more votes than did any other pitcher. He is not a spectacular pitcher but is the acme of consistency. He has never pitched a rotten game in his life and has extracted many a good win from his system.

Thompson has been a shining light on the Tech staff for two years. He woke up the collegiate baseball world when as a freshman he was selected as the unanimous all-southern choice for pitcher. Summer baseball has put him in wonderful shape and he has more stuff than ever.

Hines last year conquered his best setting sin. Coach Alexander said that when Hines developed control he would make one of the best pitchers in the south. Hines has now been two years ago he had plenty of stuff when he could make his balls come over the plate. But, then, he was just a liability to throw the ball over the fence. Last year he settled down to a steady game and made a very valuable man. He gets better each year, so ought to have his best this time.

Harry Allison is another old warhorse. Personally, he is one of the funniest men alive, and never seems to take anything seriously. But he can pitch a ball game, and don't you forget it. He was one of the favorite moundsmen last season, starting about eight games.

And then there are Enloe, Tanner and a flock of others, eager to win their letters. A little seasoning, and they will be ready for the big tent. No Tech is not weak on pitchers.

If this weather continues as it has started, Coach Alex will soon have his men out for spring football. When he does sound the call, practically all the athletic material in school will be out on the field practicing for something or other. Now, the track, baseball, basketball and cross country teams are doing well on pitches.

A little later, spring football will be substituted for basketball, and away they will go. Practically all the basketball men, and then some will report for spring football, so most everyone will be working out. Grant field will be a busy place in not many more days.

Game Thrown Out.

There was quite some excitement in Tech company football circles yesterday when it was learned that the E-M game was to be played over. This action was decided upon by Coach Alexander, after considering the protest registered by Company M. Company B won the game 2-0.

It seems that Company B played some men who had not been registered in that company all year. The charge was that these men were transferred to Company B merely for the sake of playing football. Chapman, the lad who won the game by his drop kick in the second quarter, was one of the accused. Chapman, as he figured so prominently in the victory, and in view of the fact that he had been recently transferred to Company B, Coach Alexander decided it best to play the game over. That would eliminate all cause for hard feelings or friction.

So, the game is to be played on this coming Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. All people who wish to come out and see a corking good game are urged to be present. No admission charge. Just walk in and get the best position on the sidelines.

The game is to be played on the lower field, since Coach Alex has the regular field for his baseball men. Both coaches are confident of victory.

I. C. MATHENY IS HONORED

BY TOM HUFF.

Ira C. Matheny, physical director of the Central Y. M. C. A., director of Sunday School Athletic Association, and important factor in local athletics, was elected chairman of the athletic committee of the Y. M. C. A. at the physical directors' conference in Macon last week. He is also to head the northern division, consisting of Atlanta, LaGrange, Rome, Trion and Athens.

Other divisions of the state are the eastern and southern. The former headed by H. S. Bonds, of Savannah, includes Savannah, Waycross and Augusta. Matheny, of Macon, was elected chairman of the southern division, which includes Macon, Columbus, Albany, Moultrie and Thomasville.

The Y. M. C. A. physical departments, according to the conference reports, will compete in the following sports: volleyball, basketball, swimming, indoor and outdoor field and track. The first state tournament will be held in Atlanta March 1, when the volleyball championship of the state will be decided. The preliminaries in every case will first be contested in the districts.

Atlanta will be the scene of most of the final battles. At any rate, Matheny is director of the state committee, and Wilford Leth, of Augusta, was chosen to head the newly organized physical directors' committee, whose duty it is to promote athletic activities throughout the state.

The Atlanta Y. M. C. A. is well prepared to meet other associations of the state in any and all athletic competitions. The results are anxiously awaited in local circles.

BARONS BUY TOM ABBOTT

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 13.—(Special.)—The sap is on the upward trend for fair in the Barons camp now.

Joe Dunn preceded his invasion of the south to take up spring training by wiring Secretary Bill West, of the local forces, that he had just purchased Tom Abbott from the Danville club of the Piedmont League.

Abbott will replace Tootie Brandon as second-string catcher, and will help "Big" Robertson out in receiving duties. The chances are that Abbott will do much more work than Brandon did last year. Dunn has confidence in the newcomer and this means that to do one's best work behind the bat one must have a layoff every now and then.

Little could be gleaned of Abbott's record for the 1922 season, other than that he wields a pretty wicked willow and is extremely fast on his feet for a catcher. However, we feel pretty safe in stating that he throws right-handed.

Things Looking Up.

With two catchers for the coming season—men whom Dunn figures can depend upon absolutely—things are looking up in a Baronal way. The main thing that will trouble Dunn from now on will be the shortstop position and one outfield berth. If Achinger should fail to come through and Burkett should check up wanting as he did last year, it would mean that Dunn would either have to call on his Detroit connections for a shortstopper, or would have to go in the open market and buy one.

Just as soon as this matter is decided upon and another outfielder is plugged Dunn will be sitting pretty and will be rushing his charges in slant for the opening of the 1923 campaign. Tommy Taylor is booked to play third again this season. Tommy is a changed man these days and has his heart set on showing Boss Dunn that he can take baseball seriously. The old reliable Danny Clark will look after second base and Elly Neun will no doubt be back at first. If the shortstop problem is settled amicably, it will mean the Barons will have one of the fastest infields in the league.

Tommy Taylor, by the way, has forsaken his native state of Texas for the remainder of the winter and is now basking in the sunshine of Havana, Cuba. Tommy didn't state just what he was doing over there, but it's a pretty safe bet that he has been playing a dead winter baseball, and has no doubt been following the races.

B. A. C. STOPS CRIMSON FIVE

Birmingham, Ala., February 13.—(Special.)—The Birmingham Athletic club's basketball team avenged its defeat earlier in the season by tripping the University of Alabama five here tonight by a score of 28 to 20. It was Alabama's second defeat of the season.

The victory was quite a surprise to the hundreds of Birmingham fans that turned out for the battle, as the Crimson team was recognized as being one of the most powerful in the section, being ranked by many as favorites for the southern collegiate title that will be decided at the tournament to be held in Atlanta.

The baseball guide is out giving Ty Cobb a hitting average of .401 for 1922, thanks to Ban Johnson's correction of an error to a hit. Resolved, that the adding machine is mightier than the bat.

Notary Public State of Georgia,
My commission expires December 12, 1926.

THIS YEAR

has been a great one for the Mutual Benefit. In addition to its present liberal regular dividend scale, it is paying a SPECIAL dividend this year equal to one-fourth of the regular dividend. It is a fine thing to have a policy in the Old Mutual Benefit.

General Motors Trucks

The lifetime of a GMC truck can hardly be estimated since every wearing part in both engine and chassis can be replaced. Moreover GMC refinement and design has made these replacements economical both as to time of making them and the cost of the replacement part. There is no reason why a GMC truck should not last indefinitely.

McGRAW SELLS PLAYERS BEFORE THEY GET TOO OLD

HIS DEALS SHOCKED FANDOM

Wanted Al Bridwell to Bolster Slipping Giants and Exchanged Many Players for Star.

BY JOHN McGRAW.

Though we lost the pennant in 1906 to the Cubs, I have never attributed that to a superiority of strength of the Chicago club. I do not wish to take any credit from Frank Chance, but our loss in that particular year was due to a series of accidents that practically put us out of the race. It was not until the following year that our team of 1905 and 1906 really began to disintegrate.

It was in 1907 that I discovered my players growing old and beginning to slip. Always I have made it a point never to let a club grow old on me. A manager must start reconstruction early or several years will be required to bring a ball club back to pennant winning form.

In 1906 we started off with a rush and it looked as if we had another championship in sight when suddenly bad luck fell on us with a crash. To begin with, Mathewson contracted diphtheria and had a tonsillitis. In the game at Cincinnati, Mike Bonlin broke his ankle while sliding into third. His foot caught against the bag and the force of his body driven against it snapped the bone.

Dan McGann then broke an arm and was laid up for a long time. Roger Bresnahan was hit on the head and laid up in the hospital for several days.

In addition to these accidents several players contracted minor illnesses from time to time. As a result it was clear that we were losing our playing strength on the field. Even then we finished third.

That is why I do not give the Cubs of 1906 credit for being a better ball club than the Giants that year. It was easy to see, though, that the Chicago club was coming strong and would be our strongest rival. Chance threw a lot of fighting into his team and he had the benefit of some very smart players, such as Evers and Tinker. He had a great pitcher in Mordecai Brown—a three-fingered Brown.

War Shifted to Chicago.

The bitter rivalry that had existed between the Giants and the Pirates immediately shifted to a war of wits between the Giants and the Cubs. Those were hot days—just as hot as we had gone through on the many visits to Pittsburgh.

Interest in the Chicago National League club grew in rapid bounds. Up to that time the White Sox had the call in Chicago. It was a great thing for baseball, especially in the National league, to have strong rivalry between New York and Chicago, the big cities of the country.

The board of trade of Chicago got all steamed up over the prospect and organized a rooting club. They went to the park in a body and made it just as warm for the Giants as possible. We got right back at them on every occasion and excitement ran high. This feeling kept up right on through 1906, 1907 and 1908.

It was during the early stages of this rivalry—during the reorganization of my team for 1907—that I made some of the big trades that were discussed, and often criticized, all over the country. In many of these trades it was said that I made mistakes. I may have done so, but I don't think I made many. My principle always has been, if I need a particular player for a certain place, to go out and get him at any price.

WILLING TO TRADE HIS PASTIMERS.

They say that I have let many good players go. I have. But I have never yet discovered any plan by which a manager can get a crack player without giving up a good one in exchange. I may have a crack player who is not absolutely necessary to the machinery of my club. I will trade him in a minute if I see a chance to get the one man who completes the cogs for my machine.

Often the New York club has been accused of buying the pennant. Fans have wondered how it is that the Giants were able to get any player they want after while other teams could not do so. You will notice, however, that we never get a man without giving up something valuable in return.

I noticed in 1907 that several of my players were slipping. The first indication of that is in the legs. When I notice that an infielder or an outfielder has lost that quick spring in going for a ball—that spring of youth and immediately begin looking for his

NATIONAL SCHEDULE ADOPTED

Memorials to Willie Keeler and 'Pop' Anson Voted by League at Its Annual Convention.

New York, February 13.—Decision as to whether Rube Benton, southpaw, pitcher of the St. Paul club, of the American association, will play this year with the Cincinnati club, was left today by the National league in the hands of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The league at its spring meeting referred the Benton issue, which involves opposition to the pitcher's return to the majors as an alleged undesirable player, to President John A. Heydler, but the latter declared he would be wholly guided by whatever finding Commissioner Landis makes. The commissioner, Mr. Heydler said, has been conducting an inquiry into the case for some time as a result of a formal request from the St. Paul club for a clear statement of Benton's status in organized baseball. The commissioner has not informed the league when his decision will be made.

Prior to the meeting, it was understood August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club, would seek a show-down on the part of the National league, but Mr. Heydler announced no action was taken to show the alignment of the clubs in the matter.

Clean Bill Asked. Mr. Herrmann, however, reiterated, emphatically his view that Benton should be given a clean bill, pointing out that if he had been permitted to play with the St. Paul he should be allowed to play in the majors or elsewhere.

Meanwhile the deal between Cincinnati and St. Paul, it was said, would hang fire. It had been practically closed at the time opposition to Benton's reappearance in the majors developed.

Formal transfer of Cliff Markle, a Cincinnati pitcher, as part payment for Benton, has been held up by Mr. Heydler pending the outcome of the case. The National league today formally adopted its 1923 schedule of 154 games, opening on April 17, voted to increase the league waiver price from $2,500 to $4,000, and approved the design for a memorial to be erected in Chicago over the grave of Adrian C. ("Pop") Anson, one of the most famous baseball stars of all time. A memorial to William H. ("Willie") Keeler, former batting star of both the American and National leagues, to be erected jointly by the two organizations, was proposed, and President Heydler directed to act. Keeler died several weeks ago in Brooklyn.

Smithies and University Off for Auburn Tourney

Prep Quintets From Every Section of South to Be Represented in Cotton States Meet.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Tech High and University basketball teams along with Coaches Tolbert and Beon of the respective quintets will leave Atlanta sometime during the day bound for Auburn, Ala., where they take part in the second annual Cotton States basketball invitation tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the present week.

Each team will carry along nine athletes with a coach and the personnel of the "Bluebird" aggregation will most likely be Captain Broadnax, Freeman and Boswell, guards; Melvin, Nunnally and Angley at forwards; and Quarles center, with Peel and either Murray or Crissey as substitutes. The Tech High roster will be composed of Captain Brock and George at forwards; Bell at center and Morris and Perry at forwards, with Woodall, Guiffreda and James as substitutes. Coach Doyal will probably go along and "Fatty" Burgess, former Auburn football star, will most likely be on hand for the finals.

Last year the two Atlanta teams were represented in the tourney and these two teams brought back all the bacon possible for two teams. Tech High won the championship, beating University in the final game. Several other Atlanta prep league teams were invited early in the season but due to an unusually large number of entries only two were permitted to come from the Gate City of the South.

In Fine Condition.

Both Tech High and University will be in the best possible shape for the tournament as both teams have just recently been through two weeks of the hardest grilling of the prep basketball season in Atlanta. Tech High and University are at present tied for the top place in the prep league standing and it is very likely that the two teams will be placed in separate brackets and insure more interest from the other entrants.

The entry list has not been completed as yet and the drawing will not be made until late this afternoon or early Thursday morning. The Auburn authorities have been very busy making ready for the large number of teams and the officials have been named. Ashe, one of the officials of the prep league and who has officiated at many of the Tech and Athletic club games in Atlanta, will be one of the officials. He stated last Saturday that he had received notification of his appointment from the athletic director of Auburn.

Other prep teams of Atlanta will be in the city this week but several have made arrangements to play some other teams on Friday and Saturday afternoon in-

BEST PAL IS RACE WINNER

New Orleans, La., February 13.—S. N. Holmes' 6-year-old gelding, Best Pal, ridden by Jockey Romanelli and carrying 126 pounds, won the $5,000 Mardi Gras handicap at a mile and three sixteenths, feature of the closing day of the winter racing at the Fair Grounds today. Royce Rools was second and Olymthus third. Time 1:39 1-5.

Best Pal paid 4 to 1 to win; 8 to 5 place, and 4 to 1 to show; Royce Rools, 3 to 1 place and 8 to 5 to show, and Olymthus 6 to 5 to show.

Racing in New Orleans will be transferred tomorrow to Jefferson Park, where a spring meet will be held until March 17.

POLICE COURSES RECOMMENDS SCHWAB

Chicago, February 13.—Supervisors to police golf courses and see that players are kept in proper place on the links are suggested by Charles M. Schwab, steel maker, in a letter to Chick Evans, formerly national golf champion, as desirable aids to play in these days of congestion brought about by abnormal influx of new players.

In former years, before golf became so popular, members of private golf clubs, all versed in the rules of the game, and the etiquette of golf, kept their places on the links, which usually was not crowded. But today, with thousands of recruits, especially on the public links, the new converts lose sight of their duties to others and in many cases pile up at the same spot, such as a short hole, while other holes are untenanted. Supervisors could be stationed about the course to guide the players and thus expedite their game as well as remove the annoyance to those back of the strategic point.

Meanwhile the deal between Cincinnati and St. Paul, it was said, would hang fire. It had been practically closed at the time opposition to Benton's reappearance in the majors developed.

Formal transfer of Cliff Markle, a Cincinnati pitcher, as part payment for Benton, has been held up by Mr. Heydler pending the outcome of the case. The National league today formally adopted its 1923 schedule of 154 games, opening on April 17, voted to increase the league waiver price from $2,500 to $4,000, and approved the design for a memorial to be erected in Chicago over the grave of Adrian C. ("Pop") Anson, one of the most famous baseball stars of all time. A memorial to William H. ("Willie") Keeler, former batting star of both the American and National leagues, to be erected jointly by the two organizations, was proposed, and President Heydler directed to act. Keeler died several weeks ago in Brooklyn.

OIL TOWN RAISES MONEY FOR BATTLE

Great Falls, Mont., February 13.—The oil town of Shelby, 100 miles north of here, was able today to furnish Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, with the guaranty stipulated by Kearns for a meeting there on July 4 between the champion and Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, according to a dispatch to The Great Falls Tribune.

Kearns asked that $100,000 be posted as a guaranty and an additional $50,000 as a forfeit to the backers in the event the proffered purse was not raised.

Mose Zimmerman, of St. Paul, Minn., wealthy real estate man and oil operator in northern Montana, telegraphed the assurance that made it possible to meet Kearns' requirements. Zimmerman's offer was to undertake $100,000 of the amount to be raised.

Shelby men have guaranteed $50,000 and other amounts of considerable size have been secured from different localities. The offer to Dempsey is $200,000 and to Gibbons $50,000. It has been stipulated that all profits would be donated to the American Legion.

Mr. Marx's Secret

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

M. De Cartienne nodded, and leaned forward, with his arm across the divan.

"You put the matter very plainly," he said, "and what you say is fair enough. I'll tell you how far I am prepared to help you. I won't tell you Mr. Marx's address, because I have pledged my word not to divulge it; but, if you like, I'll take you where there will be a very fair chance of your seeing him."

We passed up the heavily carpeted steps into the central hall of the hotel. The count stopped for a moment to inquire for letters at the chief porter's bureau, and as we turned away we came face to face with Lord Langerdale.

He hesitated when he saw us together, but only for a moment. Then he advanced, with a genial smile upon his well-cut, handsome face.

"You're the very Mr. I wanted to see, De Cartienne," he said. "I suppose you know your young friend's name by this time? Will you introduce us?"

The count looked distinctly annoyed, but he complied at once.

"Lord Langerdale," he said coldly, "this is Mr. Morton. Mr. Morton—Lord Langerdale."

Lord Langerdale held out his hand frankly, and drew me a little on one side, although not out of the count's hearing.

"Mr. Morton," he said pleasantly, "I am going to make a somewhat extraordinary request of you. I am sure it is a lady's will, and when you reach my age you will know that it is a thing by no means to be lightly regarded. My wife has been very much impressed by what she terms a marvelous likeness between you and—and a very near relative of hers whom she had lost sight of for a long while. She is most anxious to make your acquaintance. May I have the honor of presenting you to her?"

For a moment my head swam. The likeness of Lady Langerdale to my mother, and then this strange fancy on her part? What if they should be something more than coincidences? The very thought was bewildering. But how could it be? No, the thing was impossible. Still, the request was couched in such terms that there could be but one answer.

"I shall be extremely pleased," I declared readily.

"Breakfast with me tomorrow morning at ten—no, nine o'clock," he added, in a lower key, "I'll have something most important to say to you."

He shook my hand warmly, nodded to the count, who returned the salute with a stiff bow, and left us. We descended into the street, and a very small, neat brougham, drawn by a pair of dark, handsome bays, drew up at the entrance. The coachman's livery was perfectly plain, save that he wore a cockade in his hat, and there was neither coat of arms nor crest upon the panel of the door.

CHAPTER VIII.

During the earlier part of the evening, since we had left the hotel, my companion had shown no disposition to talk. On the contrary, his silence amounted almost to moroseness, and he had not always answered my questions. But immediately we had started on this new expedition his manner underwent a complete change. He seemed to lay himself out with feverish eagerness to entertain me, and to absorb my attention.

"I hope you're not tired," he said suddenly, at the end of one of his anecdotes. "We have rather a long drive before us."

"Not in the least," I assured him. "What is the place we are going to?"

"A sort of club, of which I am a member. I'll tell you why it is so far out of the way. Some of the members are fond of playing a little high, and have started a roulette table. That sort of thing is best kept quiet, you know."

"The place is a gambling club, then?"

"Something of that sort," he acknowledged. "I shouldn't dream of taking you there if it wasn't for the sake of meeting Marx. You understand?"

"Perfectly, thanks. Save for that reason I shouldn't think of going."

"What an infernal night!" he exclaimed, looking out of the carriage for a moment. "Almost enough to give one the miseries. Come, we'll shut it out."

He struck a match, and, turning round, lit a lamp, which was fixed at the back of the carriage. Then he quietly pulled down the blinds, and began to tell me a story, of which I heard not a word. My thoughts were engrossed by another matter. M. De Cartienne's action, coupled with the strangeness of his manner, could bear but one interpretation.

He had some reason for keeping me as much as possible in the dark as to the route we were taking.

For a few moments I felt, to put it mildly, uneasy. Then several possible explanations of such conduct occurred to me, and in apprehensions grew weaker. What more natural, after all, than that M. De Cartienne should desire to keep secret from me the exact whereabouts of an establishment which, by his own admission, was maintained contrary to the law? The more I considered it, the more reasonable such an explanation appeared to me. I began to wonder, even, that he had not asked me for some pledge of secrecy. But there was time enough for that.

By degrees the rattling of vehicles around us grew less and less, until at last all traffic seemed to have died away. Once, during a pause in the conversation, I raised the blind a little, and looked out. We had left even the region of suburban semi-detached villas; and, blurred though the prospect was by the mud which the fast rolling wheels drew incessantly into the air and on to the window panes, I could just distinguish the dim outline of hedges and fields beyond.

I looked at the carriage clock, and found that we had been already an hour and a quarter on our journey. From the furious pace at which we were traveling, we must have come nearly fifteen miles.

"This place is a long way out," I remarked.

The count laughed, and lit a cigar. "Oh, there's a good reason for that. But the men don't drive here from town—at least, not in the winter. There's a railway station only a mile away."

"We're almost there now, then, I suppose?"

He let the blind up with a spring, and looked out.

"Nearer than I imagined," he remarked. "We shall be there in three minutes."

He was just drawing in his head when there was a visible start, and he leaned right out of the window, with his face upturned to the beating rain, listening intently.

"What's that?" he withdrew it, and, snatching at the check string, pulled it violently. I looked at him in amazement. His face was ghastly pale, but his thin lips were set firmly together, and his features rigid with determination. It was the face of a brave, desperate man preparing to meet some terrible danger.

The carriage pulled up with a jerk, and he leaned down to the road. He did not speak to me, so, after a second's hesitation, I followed him, and stood by his side. There was no mistaking the sound which had alarmed him. Behind, at no very great distance, was the sound of galloping horses, and the rumble of smoothly turning wheels.

Round the corner it came, a small brougham drawn by a pair of great thoroughbred horses, whose heavy coat, even at fifty yards' distance, seemed to shake the ground beneath us. M. De Cartienne snatched one of the carriage lamps from the bracket, and, stepping into the middle of the road, waved it backward and forward over his head. His action had the desired effect.

Quivering and plunging with fear, the horses, bathed in foam and mud, came to a standstill before us, and a tall, fair man, with a long fur coat thrown hurriedly over his evening clothes, leaped out into the road. The count was by his side in a moment.

He remained a little apart, of course, out of the way of the horse, but with my eyes fixed upon the two men.

They could scarcely have spoken a hundred words before their colloquy was at an end. The newcomer returned to his carriage, and M. De Cartienne followed his example. I looked at him as he stepped in, anxious to see what effect the other's news had had upon him. Apparently it was not so bad as he had feared, for, although he still looked anxious and pale, his face lost its ghastly hue.

We drove on in the same direction as before. When we had started he turned to me.

"Do you know what a police road is?" he asked.

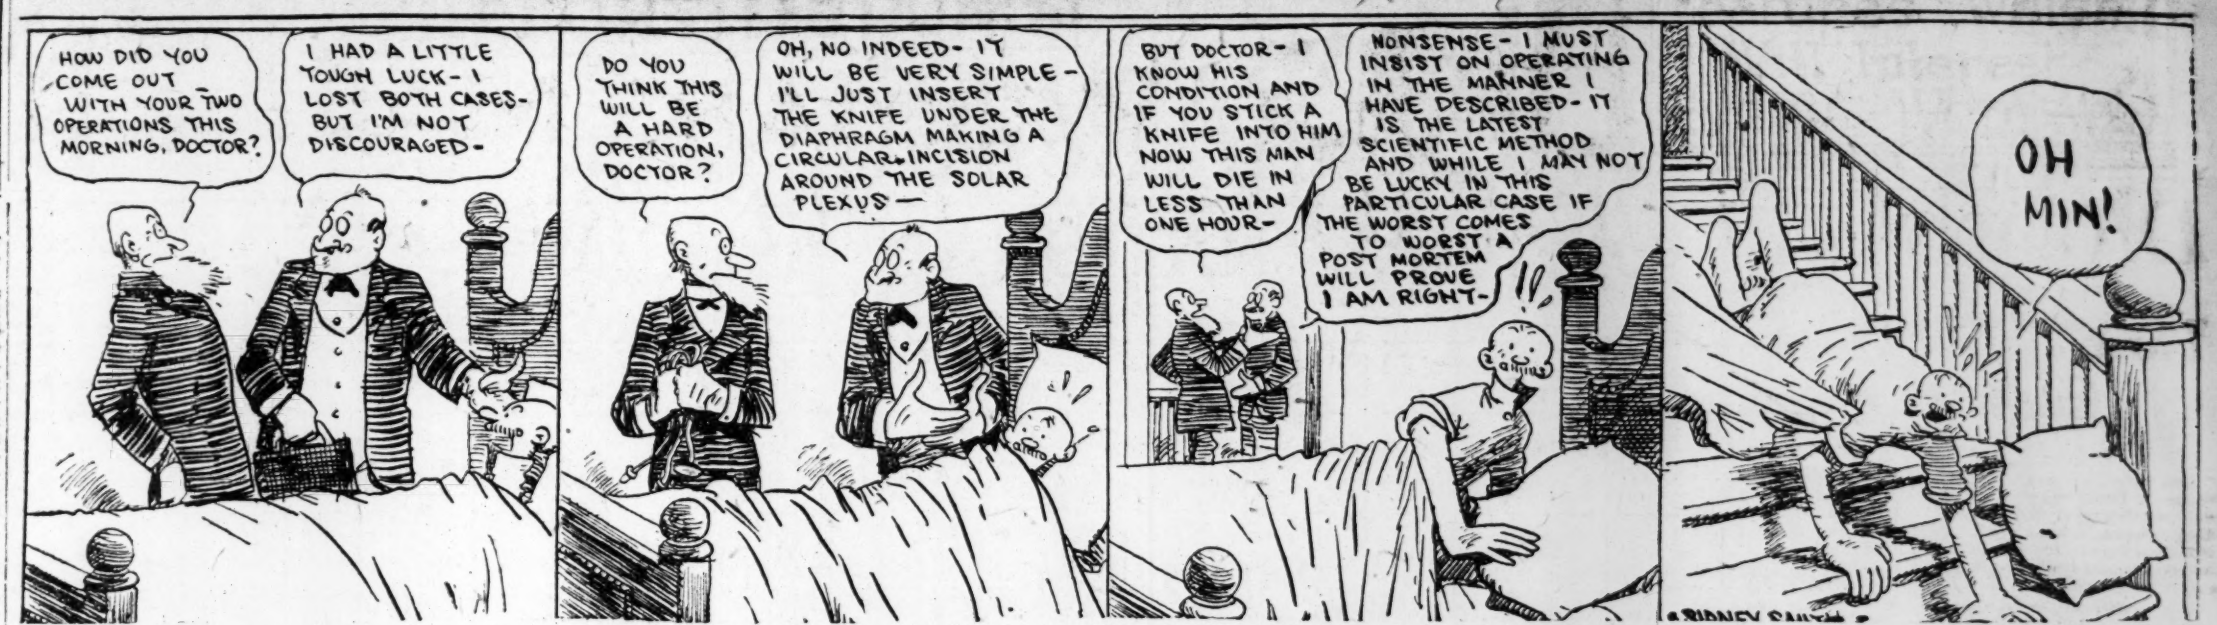

I shook my head.

"Well, I can't stop to explain," he went on rapidly. "Sir Fred—my friend there, has just brought down word of some strange rumors about the clubs tonight. It seems the police have got to hear of this place, and are going to pay it an uninvited visit. They won't be here for an hour, though, so if you like just to come inside and see whether Marx is there or not, you will have time."

We had turned off the road into a bare, grassy avenue, leading up to a red brick house, unillumined by a single light.

We were barely a minute driving up this uninviting approach and pulling up at the grim, closed door, and the carriage had scarcely come to a standstill before the count was on the doorstep, fitting a curiously shaped key into the lock. It yielded at once.

THE GUMPS—THROW OUT THE LIFELINE

and we both stepped inside, followed by the man in the fur overcoat, whose carriage had pulled up close behind ours.

We were in perfect darkness, and no one seemed to be stirring in the house, although the mat under our feet, in some way connected with an electric alarm bell, was giving shrill notice of our arrival. Then we heard swift fete approaching, and a tall, hard featured woman in a plain black gown, and holding a lamp high over her head, appeared before us.

M. De Cartienne took her by the arm, and led her to one side. The other man, who was making vain attempts to appear at his ease, and composed, sank into a chair, palpably trembling. Of the real nature of the danger which was imminent I could form only the slightest idea; but that it was something very much to be feared I could easily gather from his agitation, and De Cartienne's manner.

Suddenly the latter turned around. "Ackland," he said quickly to the man in the chair, eyeing him keenly and with a shade of contempt in his tone, "you are not fit for any of the serious work, I can see. Listen! Light up the clubroom and the smoke room, stir up the fires, bring out the cards and wine glasses, empty some tobacco ash about, make the place look habitable for us when we come. Ferdinand is one of the watch outside, and will give you notice of our visitors. Ring all three alarm bells at once if he gives the signal. Morton, I want you to wait for me. I'll send you away all right before anything happens; but don't go unless you see me again—unless you're frightened."

He turned on his heel, and, without waiting for any answer from either of us, hurried away down the passage. The man whom he had called Ackland rose from his seat, and, striking a match, lighted the gas brackets all around the hall, and the burners of a candelabra which hung from the roof.

My companion then threw open a door, and I followed him into a luxuriously appointed room furnished with a suite of lounges and easy chairs corresponding with those in the hall.

While I was looking around, he hastily began moving the chairs about, as though they had been recently used, poking the fire, and generally making the place look inhabited. Having done this, he crossed the hall, and entered the opposite room. It was a little smaller, but similarly appointed and decorated, save that a long tablet, covered with a white cloth, and laid for dinner, stood in the center, and a smaller one, with a green baize covering, at the farther end. My companion threw a pack of cards and some counters upon the latter, and drew it closer up to the fire. Then, having placed some chairs around it, he went back into the hall to the hall again, and I followed.

All the while we had been moving about, strange noises had been going on under our feet. Now and then the sound of hurrying footsteps and of hoarse voices reached us, and, more often still, the steady rumbling of heavy articles being moved about. I looked at my companion for an explanation, but he did not seem inclined to offer one.

"What's going on underneath?" I asked at last.

"Bowie," he answered curtly. "Don't talk, please; I want to listen."

The underground noises continued for about a quarter of an hour, during which time my companion busied himself by removing from the club room various articles—the false top of a table marked out in a curious fashion, several mahogany boxes and other contrivances strange to me, but presumably gambling appliances, with all of which he disappeared through the door by which De Cartienne had made his exit, returning again directly. At last everything was quiet, unusually quiet; then the door from the hall was thrown suddenly open, and the count entered, followed by four or five other men. They were all apparently gentlemen, and in evening clothes, but terribly soiled and disordered. Some were splashed with mud from head to foot, some had their shirt fronts blackened and crumpled, and the hands of all of them were black with grease and dirt. All looked more or less pale and nervous—in fact, M. De Cartienne was the only one who thoroughly retained his composure.

There was a lavatory on the other side of the staircase, toward which the whole of the little party trooped. M. De Cartienne being the last. As he disappeared he looked round and beckoned me to follow him. I did so, and stood by his side, while he plunged his hand into some cold water, and then began to wash his hands.

"I'm sorry this should have happened tonight, Morton," he said. "Marx was here, but has bolted in a fright."

"Couldn't I catch him up?" I asked.

De Cartienne shook his head. "No; he's in the train by this time. He comes here every night, though. I'll bring you down tomorrow, perhaps."

"Are you coming back now?" I asked.

"No; I must see this thing through. You can go, and at once, though. My carriage will take you back. I shall return by train. By the way, there's a small favor I want to ask you."

"Certainly."

"I have kept a few private papers here, which I should not care to have examined should the search really take place. I want you to take them back to the hotel for me. The box is a little too heavy for me to carry, so I have told them to put it in the carriage as a footstool for you. You won't mind that?"

"Not in the least," I replied. "When shall I see you again?"

"At the hotel some time tomorrow. Come along now," he added, putting on his coat.

He stroled with me to the front door, and, throwing it open, listened intently.

There was no sound save the moaning of the wind in the bare trees which stood by the side of the house, and the patter of the fast falling rain. I stepped into the carriage, and the count came to the window to me.

"Don't forget," he said, pointing to a long, oblong box secured by a strong lock. "Draw the rug a little more over your knees—so."

I obeyed him, and let it hang down to hide the box, which I began to see was his object.

"And if you should meet anyone, and they should be impertinent enough to ask you where you are going, don't tell them. Give them your card, and tell them to go to the devil. If they are very pressing indeed, you must tell a lie. Say that you've been to dine with Sir Sedgewick Bromley, at Hatherly Hall. Don't forget the name."

"Very well. Are you coming back to the Metropole tonight?" I asked.

"I think so. But if you don't mind I should be glad if you would have the box taken up into your room, and keep it for me. I shouldn't like anything to happen to it."

I promised, but without much alacrity. We shook hands, and the carriage drove off.

DRIVING CLUB VALENTINE BALL BRILLIANT MID-WINTER EVENT

Three Hundred Guests Enjoy
Event in Beautiful Setting

An event of social brilliance previous to Lent was the Valentine ball at the Piedmont Driving Club Tuesday evening, assembly of over three hundred guests for dinner, including lovely debutantes, prominent visitors and charming members of society.

Decorations at Club.
Handsome palms, potted plants and large baskets of red carnations and narcissi were attractively arranged in the reception and living rooms of the club.

The ballroom with the Valentine decorations was a setting of rare beauty for the exquisite costumes of the guests. At either end of the long room were large heavy illuminated white columns which extend the length of the ballroom on either side were garlanded with southern holly and in the center was a cluster of red hearts and cupid. In each door was a large red heart pierced by a gold arrow.

The individual tables were adorned with low baskets of pink flowers, among which were tiny hearts and cupid. The guest places were marked by valentines bearing appropriate verses and the favors were suggestive of St. Valentine's day including red heart composites filled with almonds and mints and other novelties. The valentine idea was carried out in the menu, the ice being frozen in the shape of hearts and the individual cakes were red and white frosted hearts.

Congential Parties.
Mrs. James R. Gray, Sr., entertained the largest party of the evening. Covers were placed for Colonel and Mrs. James Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Gray, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gray, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brumby, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John K. Otley, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Otley, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Martin, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Elkin, Major and Mrs. John S. For Miss Buchanan.
Miss Elizabeth Buchanan, lovely debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Buchanan, was honor guest in the party given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell King. Covers were laid for Miss Buchanan, Miss Cornelia Torrence, Miss Margaret Morgan, Henry Walker Bagley, Hugh DuBoise, Edward Van Winkle, Charles Northern, William Spalding, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harless, Mr. and Mrs. King.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allan had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnwell, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dodd.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Quinn, Miss Frances Peabody and Winter Alford formed a congenial party.

A party dining together included Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly DuBoise, Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Armstrong, Miss Ervin Light, Carl Thompson.

For Miss Cummings.
Miss Catherine Cummings, of Augusta, was honor guest in a party given by Miss Henrietta Davis. Covers were placed for Miss Cummings, Miss Catherine Erwin, Miss Davis, Willard McBurney, Sam Carter, of Carter, Ga.; Dr. J. G. Williams and others.

Another party included Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howell and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gregg.

Edgar Dunlap, Jr., had as his guests Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dossoway and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Irving.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. McGallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Smith, Mrs. Lucy Hoke Smith Simpson, Homer Hunt and John Charles Wheatley.

A party dining together included Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cowles and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar Smythe.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Lowe Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kumppeck, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barrett and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Belser composed a group dining together.

Another party included Mr. and Mrs. Joel Hurt, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Witham, Mr. and Mrs. Ewell Gay and Dr. and Mrs. Floyd McKee, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Watkins, and Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Harris dined together.

Miss Dobbs Honored.
Miss Esther Dobbs, of Memphis, Tenn., who is the guest of Mrs. Frank Stone, was the guest of honor in the party at which John Hardisty entertained. The guests were Miss Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Stalling, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Alex McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Strohbar, Vernon McMillan and Rufus Lang.

Dining together were Mr. and Mrs. Dugas McCleskey, Mr. and Mrs. George Street and Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Lowndes, Jr., Mrs. Stacy Earnest Hill, Colonel Harvey E. Buckner and Thomas Tupper formed a congenial party.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, Sr., entertained Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meador, Mr. and Mrs. Ott Alston, Mrs. Eugenia Westmoreland and Joseph Raine.

A congenial party were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Dean, Dr. and Mrs. McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Beckover Toy and Sam Carter.

Honoring Mrs. Osborne.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Becker entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robin Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dorgan, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Dozier Lowndes and Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Seiple.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyle had as their guests Miss Nan du Bignon, Miss Lucy Pairo, J. S. Slicer and Frank Thornton.

Others entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Porter, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Withington and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Holt.

Mrs. Schaeffer Is Hostess.
Mrs. Edwin Frank Schaeffer entertained very enjoyably on Tuesday afternoon when she was hostess at a bridge-tee at her home on Piedmont avenue complimentary to Mrs. Joseph Stafford, who was formerly Miss Aline Thornton.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated with quantities of cut flowers in artistic arrangement. The lovely tea table was covered by a blue cover and held in the center a silver basket filled with roses, narcissi, sweet peas and jonquils. Surrounding this were silver candlesticks holding pink tapers.

The guest prize was a pair of silver sugar tongs and the top score and consolation prizes were French novelties.

Mrs. Schaeffer received her guests wearing a gown of blue georgette. Mrs. Stafford was gowning in blue tulle. She wore a spring hat of blue straw.

The guests were Mrs. Dixie Thornton, Mrs. T. W. Boucher, Mrs. James Thornton, Mrs. Pope Franklin, Mrs. W. E. Jane, Misses Harriett Noyes, Elizabeth Summers and Carrie Thornton.

Professor Sutton to Be P-T. A. Guest.

Hearts are trumps today!

Cupid began running up and down Peachtree street very early this morning. He took fresh hope yesterday when the sun began to shine after that deluge on which we opened our morning eyes.

He hot-footed it to the nearest florist and loaded his fat little arms with the loveliest red roses, glowing like his own dear little heart, and shaped like it too.

Inside these satin glories lay flowers breathing their fragrance of romance and beating hearts and hope—roses and pansies sighing devotion and sweet peas and gardenias whispering affection while shy lilies of the valley nestled close beside them.

I met him when he was coming out of a flower shop and had a little talk with him.

He said he was in a hurry because he had very much feared that romance died out last year when St. Valentine's day was over—but several things happened at the Valentine ball last night—and elsewhere—which made him pluck up hope again especially after the sun came out yesterday morning, and he had a lot to do.

He said he wished we lived back in those days "when knighthood was in flower" and men spoke in the "I-kiss-you-hand, my-lady" fashion, for then hearts were always a-quiver for romance and Cupid said he was so busy then that he has never been able to lose all the pounds he gained because his own heart kept swelling so all the time with joy.

Mrs. Ashby To Lecture.
The subject of the lecture to be given by Mrs. Rose M. Ashby next Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock in the assembly room of the Carnegie library will be "The Faculty of Divine Order." This is the last of the seven talks on spiritual faculties and will be followed by one lecture giving a resume of the seven.

These talks on the faculties of mind in connection with the disciples are recommended by Unity and the Livable School of Christianity and have been of great value and interest to earnest seekers for truth to be applied in everyday life. All who are interested are invited to this lecture.

Benefit Dance This Evening.
There will be a Valentine dance this evening at Grotto hall, 226 1-2 Peachtree street, sponsored by Fulton Rehearsal dance staff for the benefit of the I. O. O. F. orphan home. Tickets, $1.00; ladies free.

Silk Show and Talk Will Be At Woman's Club

A reception at 3 o'clock this afternoon for new members of the home economics department of the Atlanta Woman's club is a big event of the club week at the Atlanta Woman's club, which will be largely attended as this department is one of the largest in the club.

A beautiful setting has been arranged for the occasion in connection with the department's study of textiles. Silks of all kinds and descriptions, from Oriental rugs to the silk accessories of midday's boudoir, will be shown, illustrating a talk given by Mrs. Williamette Williams, an expert in interior decorating. The material for this exhibit has been loaned by the Chamberlain-Johnson-Dubose company, and the talk will cover in a general way the history of silk from the cocoon stage.

Several of the most valuable Oriental rugs in the south will be shown, including the famous "Tree of Life" rug, which takes years to make and combine the latest beautiful colors. Samples of the latest spring silks will be demonstrated, and advice given as to the best materials for certain purposes. How to tell real silk from the imitation will be valuable advice given.

A complete costume of spring silks will be worn by Miss Florence Boykin, the daughter of the club president, and other gowns and wraps will be shown. Mrs. G. Elton Sauls, demonstrating chairman for the department, will have charge of the silk demonstration.

The latter half of the afternoon will be taken up by a laughable contest, in which the club president, while everybody present will try to guess the identity of the photos. Mrs. T. G. Delph will be chairman for this "discovery contest" and beautiful prizes of silk hosiery and Valentine boxes of candy will be awarded the best guessers.

Mrs. Delph asks that everybody bring pencils for the contest.

Mrs. Newton C. Wing, chairman of the home economics department, will be assisted in greeting the new members by the division chairmen, T. G. Delph and Mrs. C. N. Matthews, by the secretary, Mrs. William Rawlins, and by the following chairmen: Mrs. William V. Anderson, Mrs. Jesse Manly, Mrs. Ernest Covington, Mrs. J. Elton Sauls, Mrs. Harold Roberts, Mrs. John Funke, Mrs. George Roberts, Mrs. Boykin, and Mesdames Sharp and Richardson will be honor guests.

Mrs. Jesse Manly, hospitality chairman for the department, will preside over the tea table in the dining room of the club and will be assisted by her committee. Decorations of hearts and valentines will carry out the idea of St. Valentine's day and crimson candles and flowers will be used in the decorations.

The new club members of the department in whose honor the reception will be given are Mrs. Charles Mashburn, Mrs. J. E. Lee, Mrs. N. C. Winbush, Mrs. W. C. Woodham, Mrs. W. B. Brownlee, Mrs. John Boyd, Mrs. Fred Disher, Mrs. H. B. Dullin, Mrs. H. W. Perkins, Mrs. Dudley Glass, Mrs. Hugh Gilbert, Mrs. E. A. Greenwood, Mrs. William Hutchinson, Mrs. G. W. Harlan, Mrs. Walter Hill, Mrs. Joel Hunter, Mrs. Lillian, Mrs. J. F. Lee, Mrs. Charles Mashburn, Mrs. G. B. Mealy, Mrs. T. C. Mott, Mrs. Ben Rott, Mrs. Rupert Hall, Mrs. O. C. Pounds, Mrs. J. A. Harris, Mrs. W. L. Hutchinson and Mrs. Haskell. Special guests will be the class teachers, Mesdames Lovelace and Bailey and Misses L'Engle and Bue.

Valentine Dance At Elks' Club.

One of the gayest events of the valentine season will be the valentine dance to be held at the Elks' club on Wednesday evening. This is a special dance which has been arranged by the dance committee of the lodge to which only members are admitted. They are permitted to bring their wives or lady friends. Special seasonal decorations and music will be provided. A very large attendance is expected. The dance will be held at 9 o'clock in the ballroom of the Elks' home on East Ellis street.

The regular meeting of the lodge will be held on Thursday evening. As usual, there will be the regular business of the lodge followed by an entertainment program which will last one hour. A special attraction has been secured for this event and it is expected to produce much enthusiasm among the membership. This meeting will be notable for the fact that the 211 applications for membership will be acted upon at that time. This is the largest number of applications to be placed before the lodge at a single meeting, and officials are very enthusiastic over the results which are being secured from the members.

The regular luncheon of the membership committee, which has in charge the drive to secure five thousand dollars for the construction of the grand lodge convention in July, will be held on Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock in the main dining room of the Elks' club. Not only are members of the committee urged to be present, but all members of the lodge who are interested in the campaign which is now in progress are invited to attend. A special 50 cent luncheon is being offered by the lodge.

Auxiliary Will Serve Supper.

The woman's auxiliary of St. Philip's cathedral will serve supper at the lunch room, 26 Washington street, at 6 o'clock on Thursday, February 15, for 50 cents a plate. Menu: Baked ham, mustard, pickles, spaghetti, sweet potatoes, hot biscuits, butter, coffee, tea.

SECRET OF HIS SUCCESS

One of the most noted, successful and richest men of this country in a recent article said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe it all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration and the greatest helpmate of my life." Health is the first essential of every woman who wants to be a successful wife and to hold the love and admiration of her husband. If a woman finds her energies flagging and dark circles appearing under her eyes, she has backache, headaches, nervousness and "the blues," she should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the medicine which holds the record of helping 98 out of every 100 women who try it. There is nothing better.—(adv.)

REGAIN THAT GIRLY COMPLEXION EASILY

Quick Results Sure if You Do Like Thousands of Women Who Praise Black and White.

Don't worry and fret about how bad your complexion is. It is not so bad now as it looks. Rough, blotchy and unpleasant skin smooth and soft if you will use a little Black and White. It is like so many thousands of women are doing all over the country.

Blackheads, pimples and other face blemishes are nothing more than you can expect when you neglect the care of your face every day. You seem to take it as a matter of course that your complexion ought to always be just right, without any thought of the care it must have, to keep away the many outside influences which hurt the delicate tissue of the complexion.

But using just something is where so many girls and women make their mistake. Treatments which promise "overnight" beauty are often worse than if you don't use anything at all, because they must be harsh to work so quick and when they are, the skin suffers.

Millions of packages of Black and White Creaming, and Peroxide Cream, as well as Face Powder, are sold every year to girls and women who have found these to be real toilet necessities. The Creaming keeps the skin clean, protects it and moving every particle of the dust, grease and things that hurt the complexion. The Peroxide Cream keeps the skin clear, protects it and forms a perfect base to hold Black and White Face Powder thereby giving the complexion a natural appearance.

Miss Dunlop Will Wed Ledlie Conger, of Ohio

Cordial interest centers in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. William Dunlop, of 112 Inman circle, Ansley park, of the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Henwick, to Ledlie Conger, son of Rev. L. W. Conger, of Clyde, Ohio.

The lovely bride-elect is a graduate of Lassell seminary at Andover, Mass., and is taking a four-year art course at Rhode Island school of design, where she received many honors for her excellent work. She also took special courses at Brown University in Providence, R. I.

Although Miss Dunlop has only been a few months in Atlanta she has made a great many friends among the younger college set. She is quite active in church and philanthropic work, being a member with her parents of First Presbyterian church. After graduating from college, Mr. Conger studied art. He is the southern representative of the Miller Printing Machinery company of Pittsburgh, Pa., with offices in Atlanta. He has just been appointed European representative of the same company with offices in London, England.

The wedding will take place at the Dunlop home some time this month, and after a short wedding trip in their home country the young couple will sail for Europe.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of caliche powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a clean, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are not dirt and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The caliche powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they never come out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—(adv.)

CHATTER LXXXI.

At the Old Sponser Market.

Lucile slipped a light cloak around her and hurried down the corridor outside her room just as the clock on her dressing table chimed half past eleven. She would have plenty of time to reach the sponge market by midnight, but she wanted to reach it before the man she had hated with her hate could arrive there.

The little main street of the town was deserted, as had been the case and dodged into the shadows besides the sponge market so quickly that the man whom Lucile had tricked had barely time to step behind a huge box and hide himself from her.

And then came others—a woman with hat and cloak on, holding a small box very close to her; a man, with his coat collar drawn up about his chin; the blond youth with whom Lucile had been dancing earlier in the evening, slouching along, and glancing over his shoulder frequently. He ducked into the corner where Lucile was standing, then turned to her in amazement.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded, in guarded whispers.

"Having a grand time," she answered, shaking with laughter. "What brought you?"

Mrs. Warren White Entertains Club At Dinner Party

An interesting event of Tuesday evening was the valentine dinner at which Mrs. Warren White, president of the North Side Embroidery club, entertained the members of the club and their husbands.

Quantities of narcissi and jonquils in artistic arrangement decorated the rooms where the guests were received. The prettily appointed table in the dining-room held in the center a cluster of jonquils and narcissi.

Following the dinner a delightful program of entertainment was planned by Mrs. John Manget, Mrs. Clarence Tappan, Mrs. John Manget, Mrs. Charles S. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hutchins.

Mrs. White wore a handsome model of black lace.

Mrs. Manget was gowned in blue crepe trimmed with real lace.

Mrs. Hutchins' becoming costume was of caramel rosinne trimmed with brown lace.

The North Side Embroidery club is one of the Atlanta's delightful social organizations, having been organized sixteen years ago, at the home of Mrs. James T. Wike.

Covers were laid for thirty, the guests including: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Beckham, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Reish, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Cars, Mrs. D. I. Catron, Mr. and Mrs. George Coates, Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. G. King, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
I have run away from my fiancé, Jonathan Grey, fat and elderly, to the arms of a man who seems well. His wife, Mrs. Larry, tactfully shows me the folly of my course and I return home on the eve of my engagement party. So I go on with my engagement to Jonathan, though in love with Larry. A penniless youth, who seemed to be coming out party and whose name I do not know. One evening when the party, while Jonathan is at my room, my fiancé's telephone rings and I find I have discarded him ever for his lack of money. I go out to meet him and good-bye forever.

Saturday, December 30.
"You're kept us all waiting for dinner—will you never learn the importance of the dinner hour, dear?" Jonathan looked up as I came into the dining room where the family and Jonathan were gathered. She smiled, but to the initiated her impatience was plainly evident in both the smile and the tone of her voice.

This from Jonathan who tweaked my ear and ogled me playfully.
"Is that a warning or a threat?" I asked.
"Both! The fat man'll sit 'ya' if 'ya' don't watch out!" whispered Elsie, who, hands on my hips, was dancing up and down behind me.
While Jonathan was making an elaborate answer, my hand with a lot of pep back of it, sought Elsie's sturdy thigh.
"Those girls!" Mother smirked at Jonathan. She had caught the latter part of the by-play.

We were an oddly assorted lot at the dinner table. Dad, at the head of the board, was silent for the most part, occasionally glancing at Jonathan as if he was some new specimen to be dissected and analyzed. There was an element of mild surprise in his glance, as if he had found a third leg or an extra, oesophagus. Jonathan boomed and beamed, first at mama and then at me. Mama had the air of a peacock strutting about in a yard of ordinary hens. Elsie was interested only in the legs mama had ordered for the occasion, the liquors and the highly ornamented cigarettes. Of the latter brought by my fiancé, I saw her take three at one time and slip two into the bodice of her gown.

We were leaving dad and Jonathan to coffee and cigarettes when the door bell rang and a few minutes later we found Rita Warren and Tom Hyde in the living room.

"Rita! Elsie bounced into Rita's arms. 'And Tom!' There was barely a shade less of enthusiasm in the latter greeting.

"Now I can dance with Tom!" Elsie was bubbling on. "You play something, sis, something snappy!" She was capering up and down the room.

Tom caught her about the waist. I broke into their step with a little bit of melody and the two of them went whirling and swaying back and forth.

Jonathan, standing in the doorway watched them.

After running over the score twice I stopped playing and Rita took Tom in hand.

It seemed to me that she was a bit too eager, too anxiously possessive. It amused me at the time and slightly lessened my opinion of Rita's charm. She had made it so evident that she herself had no faith in it's retentive quality.

When I started to play again she stood up and held out her arms to Tom.

"You're going to do this one with me!" I heard Elsie's voice and looked around just in time to see her poking a slim finger into the top button of Jonathan's waistcoat.

He seemed to hesitate.
"You are! You are!" she cried.

I turned away to avoid what I felt would be painfully ridiculous to me. Later, however, I turned around again and there envisioned Elsie in the stubby arms of my suitor, while the latter with all the fervor of his 210 pounds was grotesquely imitating the gyrations of Tom's clothing and figure.

Elsie had clutched him wildly in the region between the shoulders. Her crop of curls was pushed bravely up under his terrible chin. They swayed and whirled. A look of utterable joy and content had settled over the red, up-turned features of my fiancé.

I stopped playing and swung around on the bench.

HOLLOMON ATTACKS U. S. FOREIGN POLICY

Georgia Tax System Also Draws Fire in Addresses at Athens.

BY HUGH J. ROWE.

Athens, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Stirring attacks on the foreign policy of the Harding administration and the tax system as administered in the state of Georgia featured two addresses here tonight by Mr. Hollomon, Washington correspondent of The Atlanta Constitution and a recognized expert on the question of state systems.

Ignorant and thoughtless legislators, many of whom, according to him, do not know their A B C's, were bitterly flayed here tonight by Mr. Hollomon for the way in which from year to year they make a "political football" out of the University of Georgia and its appropriation. These men, he said, are responsible for the university being in the bad way financially that it is today.

Tribute to Women.
During the course of his address, Mr. Hollomon paid a high tribute to womanhood of Georgia and to the extension work that is being carried on by the agricultural branch of the university.

In showing how poorly the state of Georgia provides for its state university, the speaker called attention to South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Mississippi and Louisiana, all of which states provide far better than does Georgia for their institutions of higher learning.

Others to speak tonight were Dean Charles M. Snelling, T. W. Reed, Dr. H. C. White and Harry Hodgson. Dr. Joseph S. Stewart acted as master of ceremonies.

This morning Mr. Hollomon addressed the student body of the University of Georgia and the general public of Athens in the university chapel and tonight he was the honored guest at a meeting of the faculties of the university, the State Normal school and Lucy Cobb institute, and resident trustees of all of these institutions.

This was the largest faculty assembled ever held in Athens and possibly in the state according to the older officials of the university.

Education Suffers.
It was shown by Mr. Hollomon that the tax system as administered in Georgia is entirely inadequate and that because of this, higher education which includes the university, the agricultural college and the normal school, is being made to suffer and at the present rate is facing starvation.

Optimism, however, on the part of Mr. Hollomon varied off any shadow of gloom for the future that might have been taken hold of the audience when he was telling just how poorly Georgia does in the matter of state taxes, in which better tax systems are under way.

It is the belief of this speaker that soon the tax systems of Georgia will be entirely renovated to the extent that not only institutions for higher education of the state but many of the other institutions will be properly cared for.

Legislation will be gotten under way at the next session of the general assembly, according to Mr. Hollomon, that will be the first step of a new tax program for Georgia.

"Of course there will have to be an amendment to the constitution before anything can be done, but I believe that this amendment will be made," he said.

Compares Other States.
In dealing with the question of appropriations to the University of Georgia, Mr. Hollomon called to mind the fact that the amount allowed the Georgia institution for maintenance is something like $80,000 while last year the State University in North Carolina was given $440,000, and under a new budget program $650,000 is being asked by that institution for its maintenance this year.

"Negro normal schools in North Carolina receive more than the State University in Georgia does," he said. When asked what form he thought the changes in the state would take, Mr. Hollomon said that he saw a classification tax with segregation of funds for particular departments like the university, the normal school, state asylum, etc., he believes that the property tax in Georgia never will be abolished, but he does see in the future a modification of this tax so that there will be a different tax for land held for speculative purposes and that which is not.

The recent agreement between Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, and J. J. Brown, as head of the department of agriculture, is considered by Mr. Hollomon as a good omen for progress in this state.

While in Athens Mr. Hollomon was shown over the state property, was guest at a Georgia products dinner at the agricultural college, and was entertained by officials of the university.

Milk Is Distributed To Undernourished Children in School
Bainbridge, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Dr. J. A. Johnston, health commissioner, delivered the first contribution of milk to undernourished school children at the first recess period Monday morning. Approximately 125 half-pints of milk were used.

The weighing of children for the purpose of making a list of those most in need of nourishment began in January and it is hoped that the milk depot will prove a successful project and that all school children of underweight can be served milk.

It was found that nearly all of the absentees were children who had been designated for the first service—revealing the necessity for the milk. The depot was made possible for the Bainbridge school by sales of Christmas seals, the parent-teacher association promoting the sales.

AUTO PARTS BANDITS ACTIVE IN COLUMBUS
Columbus, Ga., February 13.—Four pillagers of parts from automobiles have become the boldest ever known in the history of Columbus, according to numerous complaints made by the city and county officers.

A recent instance of their boldest took place on a night when court was holding a session after dusk and Deputy Sheriff Muri had parked his car while in attendance upon the court. On coming back to the auto several hours later he found that his car had been virtually stripped of all accessories. There have been numerous other complaints, and officers have made efforts to locate them, but except for the fact that there are four in the gang, nothing more has been unearthed.

AGRICULTURAL MEN TALK TO AUGUSTANS
Augusta, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Follow a program that will maintain the farm from the standpoint of food and feed stuffs for 1923, then turn to a surplus money crop and stand behind the state college of agriculture and take advantage of all advice offered by the college, was the advice of agricultural specialists to the farmers of this county in addresses delivered on the different angles to the question of agriculture in the board of commerce rooms Tuesday.

J. C. Greene, president of the Richmond County Agricultural society, presided. Addresses were delivered by C. A. Cobb, editor of the Southern Ruralist; E. C. Westbrook, of the State College of Agriculture; G. R. Basmore, of the agricultural department of the Central railroad; and J. P. Whittle, the soil expert, and J. Upshaw, of the agricultural department of the Georgia railroad.

CHARGE MACON MAN ASSAULTED LAWYER
Macon, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—J. V. Bunch, son of a former state legislator, was lodged in police barracks today following an assault alleged to have been committed on Walter McDaniel, an attorney. He is charged with carrying a dangerous weapon, assault and battery and loitering.

McDaniel claims Bunch jumped on him as he entered the office of Attorney C. A. Cunningham, taking him by surprise. The two men were separated after they had been rolling about the floor of the office for some time. Neither was seriously injured.

Barnwell Accepts Call.
Savannah, Ga., February 13.—(Special.)—Advice from Birmingham today stated that the Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, pastor of the First Baptist church of the Advent, that city, has decided to accept the call recently extended him by Christ church, this city, to succeed the late John D. Dismas. For eight years he served here, who recently went to a Chattanooga church. Mr. Barnwell recently visited Savannah and conferred with the vestry but has not till today made known his decision in the matter.

New Orleans markets closed, steady.

New York, February 13.—The relatively firm showing of Liverpool failed to stimulate any general or aggressive buying in the cotton market here today and early advances were followed by reactions. May contracts sold off from 28.11 to 28.06 but recovered a good part of the loss, closing at 28.25. The general market was quiet, with the market opening at 15 points lower. Active old crop months were generally 1 to 15 points higher and the new crop was 3 to 15 points lower. The market opened steady 7 to 14 points higher and the active positions sold about 10 to 18 points net higher than the previous day. The market was quiet, with the market opening at 15 points lower. Active old crop months were generally 1 to 15 points higher and the new crop was 3 to 15 points lower. The market opened steady 7 to 14 points higher and the active positions sold about 10 to 18 points net higher than the previous day.

Perhaps the failure of demand to broaden and bullish advances from the southern markets was a disappointment to recent buyers which accounted for some of the scattered liquidation. In any case, the market was quiet, with the market opening at 15 points lower. Active old crop months were generally 1 to 15 points higher and the new crop was 3 to 15 points lower. The market opened steady 7 to 14 points higher and the active positions sold about 10 to 18 points net higher than the previous day.

Trading was fairly active during the early morning, but became quiet, and the afternoon market was influenced by comparative small orders. There was some talk of too much rain in the eastern belt, but otherwise weather conditions were considered favorable, and new crop months were relatively easy toward the close.

Reports from the local cotton goods market indicated a continued good demand for deliveries extending into May at old prices but seemed to attract comparatively little attention. Exports today 10,442, making 3,494,707 so far this season. Port receipts 13,483. U. S. port stocks 537,350.

Trading was fairly active during the early morning, but became quiet, and the afternoon market was influenced by comparative small orders. There was some talk of too much rain in the eastern belt, but otherwise weather conditions were considered favorable, and new crop months were relatively easy toward the close.

Reports from the local cotton goods market indicated a continued good demand for deliveries extending into May at old prices but seemed to attract comparatively little attention. Exports today 10,442, making 3,494,707 so far this season. Port receipts 13,483. U. S. port stocks 537,350.

CHARGES DETECTIVE FRAMED 'RED' ATTACKS

Confessed Spy Gives Sensational Testimony—Atlanta Letter Is Mentioned in Deposition.

Chicago, February 13.—(By The Associated Press.)—Charges that a letter sent to the postmaster of New York city in October, 1920, threatening to kill him and blow up the Woolworth building was inspired by an official of the W. J. Burns detective agency were made today by Albert Baile, alias Balanow, confessed spy and agent provocateur, continuing his sworn deposition for use by the defense in the trial of 22 alleged communists at St. Joseph, Mich., February 25.

Balanow, under questioning by Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the defendants, also charged that Charles Scully, head of the radical bureau of the department of justice in New York was in the employ of Burns and sold him secret papers from the files of William J. Flynn, former chief of the department of justice, bureau of investigation, which position Burns now occupies.

Taking of Balanow's sworn statement was halted shortly before noon when a premature explosion of flashlight powder being used by a newspaper photographer wrecked the office of William C. Meyer, head of the department of justice in New York, where the hearing is being held. Miss Ida Silverman, court commissioner before whom the deposition is being made, was seriously injured, the victim arm of Nicholas McDonald, the victim arm of Nicholas McDonald.

"Attention," Baile said, "I will not tolerate any longer unless you free all the political and industrial prisoners or we will kill you this time for good. We mean to shake this time all right. We are going to blow up the Woolworth building this time unless you free all the prisoners mentioned here above. The Nazis of the Red Star."

"American Anarchist Fighters, New York, 1920."

"The Burns agency offices in New York are located in the Woolworth building."

Balanow swore that after the letter was mailed Meyer had him go to 1 W. W. headquarters and write an alternate letter, apparently from one radical to another, and send it to Meyer to use in showing that it threatening type of letter was the kind radicals would write.

Detailing conferences he claims to have had with W. J. Burns, head of the agency bearing his name and now head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, Balanow swore that in 1920 Burns boasted to him that if Harding was elected he would be head of the investigating bureau and that if Governor Cox won the election his office manager, Allan C. Meyer, would get the post so that either way the Burns office would be in charge.

After he had quarreled with Burns, he claimed he sent William J. Flynn, then head of the bureau of investigation, letters and documents bearing on his charges against the Burns and this agency. Later, he said, he was in court action in New York, he said.

Building an Empire

In area, and in abundance and variety of resources, the South is an empire within itself.

No other known portion of the earth of equal extent possesses such a combination of natural advantages.

As yet, these have been only partially utilized.

Their adequate development will make the South one of the richest countries in the world, and will add immeasurably to the comfort and happiness of human life.

It is a task worthy of the best skill, character and energy that a great people can give.

The South should assiduously devote herself to it, for only so may she hope ever to come into her own.

Georgia is known as the "Empire State" of this vast domain, and Atlanta as its most progressive city.

These distinctions carry with them the opportunity and responsibility of leadership in this programme of building a great industrial empire.

CHURCHES URGE
WORLD MEETING
TO BRING PEACE

Declaring that "chaos threatens the world and the time of war may burst forth at any moment as the result of conditions throughout Europe, the committee on church cooperation, a statement adopted unanimously Monday afternoon, urged the calling of a conference to deal with the economic reconstruction of the western world.

"The European nations face economic and moral troubles which they cannot solve without sympathetic counsel from America," the statement says. "A virtual state of war between France and Germany exists today. War threatens in the Near East, and thousands are suffering and dying. Unless those conditions are remedied the whole world will be dragged into war again. War will bring economic and moral ruin.

"Our country should definitely associate itself with the international call of justice now established at The Hague. As a people we should with a united voice demand peace and the league of nations.

RAILROADS' FIRE
PREVENTION MEN
MEET HERE TODAY

Representatives of all large railroads in the south, southeast and southwest are expected to attend a sectional meeting of the Railway Fire Protection association, to be held this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Atlanta hotel. About thirty-five or forty fire prevention experts will be in attendance it was announced.

Robert L. Scott, superintendent of insurance department, A. C. L. railroad, will preside over the meeting. Special consideration will be given fire protection involving such risks as shop plants, cotton and other terminals. The subject of forest fires will be considered also.

Among those present will be A. M. Scholen, chief engineer of the Southern Railway system; E. B. Berry, superintendent of insurance department, Southern Railway system, with headquarters at Washington, D. C.; J. R. Chew, of the Central of Georgia insurance department; F. Whittemore, Nashville, Tenn., representing the N. C. & S. L. Railroad company; F. C. Flynn, of Louisville, Ky., representing the L. & N. R. R. company; and G. L. Bull, of the Frisco system at St. Louis. A number of inspectors of the various railroad insurance departments will also take part in the discussion.

POULOS MURDER
CAUSE OF DEATH
OF HIS MOTHER

Grief over the death of her son, Peter G. Poulos, Atlanta, who was murdered in his restaurant on Forsyth street last December, caused the death of Mrs. Poulos, according to a letter which has been received by George Poulos, brother of the slain man, from John Poulos, his cousin, who is now visiting in Greece.

Upon arriving in Greece in January 15, John Poulos found Mrs. Poulos confined to her bed, where she had remained since learning of the slaying. Two days later, he writes, the aged mother died from what her physicians diagnosed as "a broken heart." She resided in Megle, Anapsova, Greece.

John Poulos is in Greece on the visit that he and the slain man had planned to make together. In June he will bring a bride back to the United States with him. Her name is Stella Poulos and she is a sister of Peter Poulos, the letter stated.

Georgia Fair Men Will Begin Annual Meeting Here Today

Georgia fair representatives from all sections will attend the eleventh annual convention of the Association of Georgia Fairs which meets today at the Ansley hotel.

The convention will last through Thursday and will be attended by leading fair promoters of the state. Among the speakers will be J. Phil Campbell, director of farm extension work for the Georgia College of Agriculture, and J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture. Supervised by W. A. Sutton, of the Atlanta public schools; W. H. Goehner, of the National Trotting Association of Hartsville, S. C.

A program of entertainment for the visitors has been arranged by R. M. Stripling, of the Southeastern Fair association.

The officers of the association are John H. Meek, president, Albany, W. L. Cleveland, first vice president, Sandeville; Brown Whittier, secretary-treasurer, Atlanta; Directors: J. Dowling, Valdosta; R. M. Whaley, Atlanta; John H. Meek, Albany; W. G. Jones, Columbus; J. A. Stratton, Sandeville; Brown Whittier, Atlanta; Mrs. M. E. Judd, Dalton; R. A. Stratton, Marietta; and J. Lake Burdett, Washington.

NEAR EAST RELIEF
SHOWN TO KIWANIS

Local Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon, which was held at the Ansley hotel, were shown a film of the American Near East relief committee by the exhibition of a film, "Uncle America Sees It Through," presented in connection with a lecture on Armenian conditions by Rev. C. F. Hill-Crathen, who recently returned to this country after engaging in Near East relief work for three years.

The picture depicted scenes at orphanages maintained by the American Relief Administration, showing the homeless children being taught various vocations. At one orphanage alone, according to the lecturer, 18,000 orphans are cared for.

MASSELL PAYS $50,000

the photographer, was blown off, and William Cunnea, Jr., was slightly injured by flying glass.

Several Hurt.

All the windows of the office suite were blown out and many valuable papers destroyed. Mr. Walsh, Balanow, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney-general of Michigan; Charles W. Gore, prosecuting attorney of Berrien county, Michigan; and Max Burger, former department of justice agent, who were posing for the picture were so badly shaken it was necessary to postpone the session until tomorrow. It was also feared that some of Balanow's private papers and documents, which were to be used as evidence, had been destroyed.

Balanow, in his testimony, swore that Allan C. Meyer, head of the radical department of the Burns agency, had him, while employed as a Burns operative, go to the office of the Thiel agency, where he was formerly employed, and write the letter to the New York postmaster as a Thiel typewriter. The letter read:

"Attention," Baile said, "I will not tolerate any longer unless you free all the political and industrial prisoners or we will kill you this time for good. We mean to shake this time all right. We are going to blow up the Woolworth building this time unless you free all the prisoners mentioned here above. The Nazis of the Red Star."

Robert L. Scott, superintendent of insurance department, A. C. L. railroad, will preside over the meeting. Special consideration will be given fire protection involving such risks as shop plants, cotton and other terminals. The subject of forest fires will be considered also.

Among those present will be A. M. Scholen, chief engineer of the Southern Railway system; E. B. Berry, superintendent of insurance department, Southern Railway system, with headquarters at Washington, D. C.; J. R. Chew, of the Central of Georgia insurance department; F. Whittemore, Nashville, Tenn., representing the N. C. & S. L. Railroad company; F. C. Flynn, of Louisville, Ky., representing the L. & N. R. R. company; and G. L. Bull, of the Frisco system at St. Louis. A number of inspectors of the various railroad insurance departments will also take part in the discussion.

POULOS MURDER
CAUSE OF DEATH
OF HIS MOTHER

Grief over the death of her son, Peter G. Poulos, Atlanta, who was murdered in his restaurant on Forsyth street last December, caused the death of Mrs. Poulos, according to a letter which has been received by George Poulos, brother of the slain man, from John Poulos, his cousin, who is now visiting in Greece.

Upon arriving in Greece in January 15, John Poulos found Mrs. Poulos confined to her bed, where she had remained since learning of the slaying. Two days later, he writes, the aged mother died from what her physicians diagnosed as "a broken heart." She resided in Megle, Anapsova, Greece.

John Poulos is in Greece on the visit that he and the slain man had planned to make together. In June he will bring a bride back to the United States with him. Her name is Stella Poulos and she is a sister of Peter Poulos, the letter stated.

the photographer, was blown off, and William Cunnea, Jr., was slightly injured by flying glass.

Several Hurt.

All the windows of the office suite were blown out and many valuable papers destroyed. Mr. Walsh, Balanow, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney-general of Michigan; Charles W. Gore, prosecuting attorney of Berrien county, Michigan; and Max Burger, former department of justice agent, who were posing for the picture were so badly shaken it was necessary to postpone the session until tomorrow. It was also feared that some of Balanow's private papers and documents, which were to be used as evidence, had been destroyed.

Balanow, in his testimony, swore that Allan C. Meyer, head of the radical department of the Burns agency, had him, while employed as a Burns operative, go to the office of the Thiel agency, where he was formerly employed, and write the letter to the New York postmaster as a Thiel typewriter. The letter read:

"Attention," Baile said, "I will not tolerate any longer unless you free all the political and industrial prisoners or we will kill you this time for good. We mean to shake this time all right. We are going to blow up the Woolworth building this time unless you free all the prisoners mentioned here above. The Nazis of the Red Star."

"American Anarchist Fighters, New York, 1920."

"The Burns agency offices in New York are located in the Woolworth building."

Balanow swore that after the letter was mailed Meyer had him go to 1 W. W. headquarters and write an alternate letter, apparently from one radical to another, and send it to Meyer to use in showing that it threatening type of letter was the kind radicals would write.

Detailing conferences he claims to have had with W. J. Burns, head of the agency bearing his name and now head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, Balanow swore that in 1920 Burns boasted to him that if Harding was elected he would be head of the investigating bureau and that if Governor Cox won the election his office manager, Allan C. Meyer, would get the post so that either way the Burns office would be in charge.

After he had quarreled with Burns, he claimed he sent William J. Flynn, then head of the bureau of investigation, letters and documents bearing on his charges against the Burns and this agency. Later, he said, he was in court action in New York, he said.

Building an Empire

In area, and in abundance and variety of resources, the South is an empire within itself.

No other known portion of the earth of equal extent possesses such a combination of natural advantages.

As yet, these have been only partially utilized.

Their adequate development will make the South one of the richest countries in the world, and will add immeasurably to the comfort and happiness of human life.

It is a task worthy of the best skill, character and energy that a great people can give.

The South should assiduously devote herself to it, for only so may she hope ever to come into her own.

Georgia is known as the "Empire State" of this vast domain, and Atlanta as its most progressive city.

These distinctions carry with them the opportunity and responsibility of leadership in this programme of building a great industrial empire.

CHURCHES URGE
WORLD MEETING
TO BRING PEACE

Declaring that "chaos threatens the world and the time of war may burst forth at any moment as the result of conditions throughout Europe, the committee on church cooperation, a statement adopted unanimously Monday afternoon, urged the calling of a conference to deal with the economic reconstruction of the western world.

"The European nations face economic and moral troubles which they cannot solve without sympathetic counsel from America," the statement says. "A virtual state of war between France and Germany exists today. War threatens in the Near East, and thousands are suffering and dying. Unless those conditions are remedied the whole world will be dragged into war again. War will bring economic and moral ruin.

"Our country should definitely associate itself with the international call of justice now established at The Hague. As a people we should with a united voice demand peace and the league of nations.

NEAR EAST RELIEF
SHOWN TO KIWANIS

Local Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon, which was held at the Ansley hotel, were shown a film of the American Near East relief committee by the exhibition of a film, "Uncle America Sees It Through," presented in connection with a lecture on Armenian conditions by Rev. C. F. Hill-Crathen, who recently returned to this country after engaging in Near East relief work for three years.

The picture depicted scenes at orphanages maintained by the American Relief Administration, showing the homeless children being taught various vocations. At one orphanage alone, according to the lecturer, 18,000 orphans are cared for.
